

GEORGIA TROOPS HELD IN READINESS TO QUELL SERIOUS RAIL STRIKE DISORDERS AT WAYCROSS

President Tells Operators to Open Mines

FEDERAL TROOPS MAY GUARD MEN PRODUCING COAL

After Bituminous Operators Accept Parley Plan "In Principle," President Issues Statement.

SETTLEMENT EFFORTS ARE WITHOUT AVAIL

So Administration Says Public Welfare Must Come First, Therefore Mines Must Operate.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, July 17.—Bituminous coal mine operators were invited by President Harding at the white house today to "return to your mine properties and resume operations," after they had replied to the president's tender of arbitration for settling the national coal strike with a collective offer to put their properties and their service at the disposal of the government "in this crisis." Speaking as chairman of the group of operators after the white house conference, Alfred M. Ogilvie said the employers would make the attempt to resume operations.

Meanwhile the miners union, through an adjournment since die of its controlling policy committee, made certain its refusal to accept the arbitration proposal, and many of its officials immediately left Washington. The bituminous operators were likewise not a unit in accepting the government arbitration proposal, but the president said that a "large majority" of them, by unqualified acceptance had given him occasion to "express my own and the public's attitude."

May Use U. S. Troops.

There were intimations in official circles that all the implications of the decisions to ask that the mines be opened had been fully considered by the government, and that there was a possibility that the protection of troops and the American flag would be furnished in districts where men were willing to work, failing sufficient local safeguarding. Employers generally held the view that some coal production would result in union fields in Pennsylvania and Ohio, if nowhere else, even though executives of the union mines of the Ohio river reported today that output was being cut off sharply through lack of transportation, due to the railroad strike.

A day and a night of almost continuous sessions did not suffice to make the bituminous employers a unit for acceptance of the arbitration proposals of the government, even though anthracite operators last week had given quick acceptance. On a final vote, a general letter, accepting the principle of arbitration and making the tender of mines and services, was agreed upon and presented to the president.

Letter to President.

"We have given most careful and thorough consideration to the proposals submitted by you on July 10, supplemented by your statement of July 15 and we are not only in entire accord with your plan to establish a general tribunal to inquire into all the facts in our industry and make recommendations for the solution of our fundamental problem, but we urge that such a plan be put into effect by you.

"We also wish to remind you that we have already proposed the broad principle of arbitration in our previous conferences with the officials of the administration, and with the representatives of the miners. We still stand on that broad principle and are in entire accord with you in that respect.

"We did have in mind, discussing with you certain recommendations as to the machinery to make an arbitration plan effective and to accomplish the result which the country and you yourself desire.

Answer By Districts.

"In view of the contingencies that confront us and the varying conditions in the different coal producing districts of the country, our conference has decided to answer your proposal by districts, rather than as a whole, and we hereto attach statements of the position taken by the several districts represented in the conferences of operators assembled at your request in Washington.

"All of the operators of your con-

'Damned Gossipers' Blamed by Father Of Murdered Girl

Coroner's Jury Charges Murder to Mrs. Phillips in Hammer Killing Case.

Los Angeles, July 17.—While the coroner's jury was making the investigation Monday of the death of pretty 20-year-old Alberta Meadows, which resulted in a verdict of "premeditated murder" against Mrs. Clara Phillips, a former actress, Fred Tremaine, father of Mrs. Meadows, was blaming "damned gossipers" for the hideous crime.

Mrs. Phillips is alleged to have beaten Mrs. Meadows, a widow and a bookkeeper in a bank here, to death with a hammer last Wednesday after accusing her of intimacy with her husband.

"If it hadn't been for these damned gossipers who spread the most vile and untrue scandal about my daughter and Mr. Phillips, Alberta would be alive today," Tremaine repeated again and again in the sheriff's office, where he sat, waiting his turn to testify.

Pitiful Picture.

Eighteen-year-old Leonora Tremaine, the murdered woman's sister, who had been questioned extensively about Alberta's past, presented the most pitiful picture in the room of the witnesses. Her face was pale and tear-stained and she seemed in a half-hysterical condition. She would talk to no one but her bent and grief-stricken father.

Mrs. Peggy Caffie, blonde and still somewhat pretty, was the principal witness at the inquest. She once appeared in vaudeville with Mrs. Phillips and has told the police she was an eye-witness to the horrible death of Mrs. Meadows.

Interspersing words with frequent sobs, Peggy told again how she had been with Mrs. Phillips when the latter persuaded her young girl victim to drive them to lonely Montecito Heights; there accused her of misconduct with Phillips, and finally, Mrs. Caffie declared, that her death with repeated blows of a little hammer she had bought that day in a 5-and-10-cent store.

Defendant Unmoved.

Mrs. Phillips' version of the killing remains unknown, except as to the alleged confession to her husband which the latter repeated to the police. The woman seems utterly unmoved by the affair, and is calm and smiling. Her husband declares she is insane.

Phillips was deeply moved at meeting his wife in the county jail here, but she continued to be calm and even joked him on his emotion.

Mrs. Caffie broke down and cried today that output was being cut off sharply through lack of transportation, due to the railroad strike.

"Hello, Peggy," was her greeting. "They got me. What's the matter? You didn't expect to see me wilt and weep at the sight of you, did you?"

The police intend to question Mrs. Caffie further, believing she hasn't told all she knows of the affair.

FIGHT ON CHARTER IN HOUSE TODAY

Advocates Confident of Success—Expect Definite Action in Calcium Arsenate Emergency.

The fight against the ratification by the legislature of amendments to Atlanta's city charter led in that body by Representative Bentley, of Fulton, will come to a head probably at the session of the house Tuesday when the bill containing the amendments will come up as a special order. Representative Murphy M. Holloway, who has joined with Representative Virlyn B. Moore in supporting the charter amendments as proposed, stated Monday night that the first test vote taken on the measure Monday showed overwhelming strength in favor of the adoption of the bill.

Representatives Holloway and Moore will lead the fight for the passage of the charter amendments if the bill is called up Tuesday. Senator Frank Mansson, who represents this district in the senate, declared Monday night he would have no statement to make as to his attitude on the measure until it comes over to the senate. He indicated, however, that he would be guided largely by the house action on the bill.

Debate Is Limited.

In the house Monday Representa-

LEGION HONORS WILSON DURING HARRIS ADDRESS

Georgia Senator, Speaking at Waycross, Pays Eloquent Tribute to Former Chief Executive.

MESSAGE OF LOVE SENT TO EX-PRESIDENT

George Woodruff and R. D. Cohen Running for Head of the State Legion.

Waycross, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)

An ovation lasting over 10 minutes was given the name of Woodruff Wilson by the Georgia convention of American Legion today when Senator William J. Harris paid an eloquent tribute to the former president, terming him "the wounded soldier in Washington."

The audience arose to its feet in the midst of Senator Harris' address and never before in the history of Waycross has such an ovation been accorded to any man. At the conclusion of the address, Judge Jerome Crawley, of the Waycross post, introduced a motion, which was passed unanimously, instructing the state adjutant to send a telegram to former President Wilson, assuring him that the love, esteem and sympathy of the state legion is still with him.

Enthusiastic Welcome.

Scenes of great enthusiasm featured the opening of the American Legion convention in this city today. With bands playing, trumpets blaring and whistles shrieking, the legion host descended upon Waycross. Although delegates have been arriving during the last 30 hours, the great mass of delegates reached the city on the early morning train.

Hundreds of delegates have arrived from all sections of the state with every train arriving today bringing additional visitors. The Augusta delegation arrived in full force yesterday afternoon. The Columbus legionnaires arrived in a special car this morning and immediately made their presence known. Led by the famous life and drum corps the Columbus post held an early morning parade through the business section of the city.

Immediately upon the heels of the Columbus delegation, the Valdosta post arrived on a special chartered train, and immediately made known that they were here.

Woodruff Entered.

A contest for the office of state commander is apparently developing. Both the Columbus and Augusta posts already have candidates in the field and are already conducting a lively campaign in behalf of their candidates. The Augusta post will present the name of Rodney D. Cohen for state commander, while the Columbus delegates are advocating the candidacy of George "Kid" Woodruff.

Mayor Dan Cowart and City Attorney D. M. Parker welcomed the visitors to Waycross and State Commander Fort responded on behalf of the legion, while Mr. Fleming, state president, responded in behalf of the ladies' auxiliary. Senator Harris and Judge William H. Barrett were the principal orators on the morning's program.

The opening session of the ladies' auxiliary was held this evening at the Presbyterian church. A reception tendered the auxiliary delegates and visitors and legion state and local executive boards and distinguished guests at the home of Mrs. R. E. Trezier, was a feature of the afternoon program. A baseball game this afternoon, a boxing match at the city ball park tonight, and dancing until a late hour tonight kept the visitors amused.

Atlanta Delegation.

Atlanta's delegation of the American Legion convention, which left here Sunday night to attend the annual session in Waycross this year, was given a rousing send-off at a meeting of Post No. 1 Saturday evening. An attempt to bring the convention to Atlanta will be made by the delegation, which is as follows: Post No. 1: E. P. Gambrell, Robert B. Troutman, J. B. Conyers, Basil Stockbridge, Trammell Scott, E. H. Elrod, L. F. Woodruff, Ben Hoque, John M. Slaton, Jr., Harry A. Wallerstein, A. J. Almand, Asa W. Candler, and J. A. Bankston, Jr. The following are alternates: Messrs. J. M. Glavin, Hal T. Morrison, Ben C. Fowler, James L. Harrison, R. L. Wilson, Jr., George Bell, Jr., M. Bryson, J. G. C. Bloodworth, Jr., Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., and R. M. Cobb, Jr. Post No. 78: Evan Howell, Steve Mitchell and Sanders. Post No. 51: Robert Stevens.

Man Runs Amuck On Manila Streets And Wounds Eight

Manila, P. I., July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—A Filipino ran amuck today in the heart of the American residential hotel and club district, slashing and cutting eight persons with a bolo. A large crowd pursued the Filipino to the beach at Manila bay, where he jumped in the water and was lassoed by an American army captain who had followed him in a boat.

There was no Americans among the victims. Among the injured were a Filipino woman whose both hands were cut off, and who may die, and two native girls.

Police say the crime is the first of its kind in Manila in many years. They say that instances of running amuck previously had been confined to Moros.

ALEXANDER SAYS POLICE FRAMED UP ON HOTEL KEEPER

"Police and City Powers Will Be Exerted for Prosecution of Law-Abiding Man," He Declares.

CHARGES OFFICER FIRED AT CITIZEN

Police Commission, Chief and Recorder Rapped by Former District Attorney—His Charge Denied.

The injury early Sunday morning of Police Officer J. T. Fisher by J. A. Earl, proprietor of the Candler hotel, 110 Ivy street, who is charged by the officer with resisting arrest and assaulting him, took another turn Monday when former United States District Attorney Hooper Alexander made public a formal statement in which he criticizes not only Officer Fisher, but the entire police system.

Attorney Alexander, who declared he was not Earl's lawyer but was acting merely in the capacity of a citizen and a friend, charged in his formal statement that Officer Fisher was drinking and forced a way into Earl's bedroom without warrant or cause, fired a pistol at Earl and would have killed him had not the latter grasped the barrel, because Earl attempted to telephone the police station that the officer was intoxicated and annoying him.

"It isn't the outrage of this sort of thing that gives occasion for the deepest indignation," he declared. "Such things have become common. But it is enough to stir public resentment to the depths and alarm the public that in such circumstances the city police and all the powers of the city should be exerted for the further prosecution of a perfectly law-abiding, well-behaved citizen."

"The thing agitating the police," he continued, "is not what shall be done to the officer, but how they can defend the officer and get Earl. The latter must be wondering what sort of a story will be concocted in order to have a fine put on him so as to vindicate the assailant. It is an outrage of the sort that ought to arouse public demand."

Mr. Alexander declares flatly that Earl is not in such a position that he can look for justice either from the recorder or the police commission, and adds that "I shall await with interest to see just what the chief and the commission are going to do about it."

"Let it be remembered," he appeals, "that there was not the slightest pretense of any complaining against Earl to justify the invasion of his bedroom. And yet, because he defended his life, he must be locked up in a cell and tried like a felon. What a travesty on Atlanta justice."

The charge that the officer was drunk is denied by Captain Chandler's report to Chief Beavers, which states that he personally investigated this claim and found it absolutely untrue and without foundation. The two call officers, who were the first to reach Officer Fisher, and Patrolman W. F. Allen, who rendered him help when Earl is said to have been striking him with the "billy," all denounce Earl's claim that Fisher was drinking as false, and support the report of Captain Chandler.

FOUR KNOWN DEAD FOLLOWING ATTACK ON CLIFTON MINE

While Two Others May Be Dead Beneath Smoldering Ruins of Burned Tipple.

MANY ARE ARRESTED BY STATE POLICE

Order Is Sternly Enforced by Deputies and Police at Scene of Bloody Conflict.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Wellburg, W. Va., July 17.—Four known dead, whose bodies lay in the morgue here tonight, were silent witnesses of the gun fight which raged for more than an hour at daybreak around the Clifton mine of the Richmond Coal company at Cliftonville, 10 miles away. Sheriff H. H. Duval, who led his little band of deputies against a large crowd of men, said to have crossed from the union coal field of Pennsylvania, was among those dead. The others are:

Francis Milich, Monnesen, Pa.

Crook.

An unidentified man. With Sheriff Duval, when his men pressed battle against the attacking force and drove them back from the mine, after the tippie had been fired and at least two of the participants had fallen, was his son, Thomas. The latter saw his father shot down, they body later being found to contain marks of seven bullets, but continued on with the defenders. Not long afterward, when the fight was over, he was made sheriff of Brooke county in his father's place by a court order.

Watchers at the mine were waiting for the ruins of the tippie, burned in the attack, to cool before searching for bodies of two men believed to be buried under the debris.

May Be More.

Rumor persisted that the bodies in the morgue by no means represented the total casualties of the fight, but none of the deputy sheriffs would confirm reports that numbers of men had been shot down and their bodies dragged through the woods by their companions.

Error in repeated announcements at the sheriff's office during the day that at least seven men had been killed and their bodies brought here were accounted for tonight by an official who said that men now known to be wounded were at first reported dead. Three wounded men of the attacking force were taken to the hospital.

Harris Shatters 41-Year Record; Deserts Solons

"Uncle Nat" Leaves for Bed-side of Wife, But Arranges for Interests of Tech.

Former Governor Nat E. Harris, chairman of the board of the Georgia School of Technology, and untiring worker for the interests of that institution, left Atlanta Monday for his summer home in Tennessee—a thing which Mr. Harris has not even dreamed of while the state solons were in session for the past 42 years.

The veteran official and educator was summoned to the bedside of his wife, who is ill in Tennessee. Before leaving, he conferred with prominent friends and officials of Tech at the capitol, and, as he put it, "was granted a leave of absence for the duration of the emergency only."

Since 1882, either in the capacity of a member of the assembly or a representative of the interests of Georgia Tech, Mr. Harris has been in constant attendance at each and every meeting of the legislature—a record which his many friends claim to be unequalled.

"I was not hanging around the capitol as a lobbyist, however," smilingly protests the former chief executive. "I have done my work openly and sincerely, I believe, and for many years I have told the boys plainly: 'If you intend doing something big for Tech, this is the year.'"

Pledging himself to return as soon as possible and resume his championship of Tech's cause, Mr. Harris caught a train Monday afternoon.

LATE DEVELOPMENTS IN RAILROAD STRIKE

Peace conferences between members of the United States railroad labor board and the railway executives are resumed.

E. F. Grable, head of maintenance of way men, arriving in Chicago to demand that roads stop forcing track men to do work of strikers.

Railroad officials assert many thousand strikers returned to work on the last day given them to protect their seniority rights on many roads.

J. C. Smock, vice president of the maintenance workers, estimated that 25,000 out of some 400,000 members of his union have struck without authorization.

Strike sympathizers in Iowa who prevented wrecking crews from clearing tracks are warned by federal officials not to interfere with interstate traffic.

HORNE THREATENS DRASTIC METHODS TO FORCE DIPPING

Federal Officer Declares Law Will Be Enforced as Long as It Remains on Statute Books.

VATS DYNAMITED SUNDAY IN LANIER

Lowndes Anti-Dippers Also Ignore Order to Drive Cattle to Dasher, and Force Is Planned.

Valdosta, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Declaring that as long as the cattle dipping law remains on the books it will be enforced, and that every reasonable means having been exhausted, more drastic methods will be employed, Dr. Sim J. Horne, federal tick eradication officer, left Valdosta today for Atlanta.

And, anticipating Dr. Horne's ultimatum and seemingly a challenging deed, a vat was blown Sunday noon in Lanier on the Valdosta-Milledgeville road. An order to drive cattle to the Dasher dip also has been ignored.

An investigation of the Sunday dynamiting in Lanier, it is said, showed no trace of a raid. In matter of the refusal to take cattle to the Dasher vat, arrangements have been made to assemble a sufficient force to make the cattle dip and then anyway.

May Concentrate Guards.

"County, state and federal governments cannot afford to guard all the dipping vats in Lowndes county," declares Dr. Horne, "but one vat, at least, can be properly guarded at a reasonable cost, and this will be done. All cattle will be driven to that vat and dipped. There will be no interruption to the dipping program in Lowndes county."

Dr. Horne stated that following the dynamiting of vats in Lowndes Thursday night, all cattle owners who had been using the Hutchinson vat, which was destroyed, were ordered to drive cattle to Dasher vat and dip. This is the order that was ignored and which caused arrangements to be made to have a sufficient force of men get the cattle and dip them regardless. Reports indicate dipping is being carried on without trouble today.

Four Wrecked in Lanier.

It is reported that in addition to the 16 vats blown in Lowndes county Thursday night, four were destroyed in Lanier Sunday making 20 in the two counties. Also it is understood Lowndes county will not be asked to rebuild vats but that one or two vats will be maintained and properly guarded. All dipping will be done at these vats. Dr. Horne stated that plans for complete control of situation would be announced this week.

Sum and Frank Staten of Echols county, were arraigned today before United States Commissioner Perry in Valdosta on federal warrants charging them of shipping cattle across state line into Florida in violation of federal quarantine laws. Both waived preliminary hearing and bonds were fixed at $500 each, which were given.

EMMA GOLDMAN BARRED BY BRITAIN

London, July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Home Secretary Shortt in the house of commons today stated that Emma Goldman would not be allowed to enter England as her presence was considered undesirable.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR PARK SEIZURE

Asks Bond Commission and School Board to Urge Grant Heirs to Release Property.

SITE WOULD COST ATLANTA $75,000

Cody Will Be Sent to Convention—St. John's Check Accepted—New School Sites Approved.

By a vote of 16 to 8, city council Monday afternoon decided to refer the matter of utilizing a 10-acre tract on the north end of Grant park as a site for a girls' senior high school, back to the board of education and school committee of the bond commission, requesting that they seek permission of the L. P. Grant heirs for the erection of the building on the park property.

Decision of council to defer action on the park site followed a number of talks from both aldermen and councilmen, who were for and against the resolution offered by Council J. R. Murphy, during which considerable oratory on both sides was dispensed. More than two hours were required to bring the matter to a vote.

J. L. Mayson, city attorney, held that the park property in its present state could not be condemned by the city for any use other than park purposes. Mr. Mayson outlined a technical way in which the 10-acre tract might be legally utilized for a school site. Before condemnation proceedings could be legally executed against the property, the city attorney stated, the title would have to be restored to the Grant heirs and then the city could institute condemnation proceedings.

Might Cost $75,000.

In carrying out this arrangement, Mr. Mayson asserted, the city would be liable for the appraised valuation of the site which would aggregate $75,000, and if certain of the Grant heirs insisted, this money would have to be paid for the property.

Following council's decision to further seek the consent of the Grant heirs to building the school in the park, B. M. Grant, one of the Grant heirs, informed The Constitution that, while he was not acquainted with the ideas of all the heirs, he knew that a number of them would definitely refuse to grant the request of the city officials. He intimated that a majority of the heirs would take this position, though he was careful to state that his information along this line was not exact. "Would the proposition to deed back

MAY DROP TARIFF UNTIL LATE FALL

Growing Deflection of Republicans Makes Task of Passing Fordney Measure Doubtful Undertaking.

The Weather PARTLY CLOUDY

Washington, July 17.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Growing deflection among republican members of the senate appears to have caused majority leaders to abandon hopes of passing the tariff bill until late in the fall—if then.

Party leaders are now convinced that it is impossible to put the pending legislation through before October, against previous plans of assuring passage by the middle of August. And the matter, aside from offering numerous troubles for the administration, has produced another somewhat cantankerous thought.

Tariff legislation must either be laid aside together with the ship subsidy and bonus, or else the coming congressional campaign will be carried on largely from the capitol.

Hits Electioneering.

Those members who are seeking to hold their seats in the house and senate are agreed that their election-

GOVERNOR ISSUES CALL FOR MILITIA ON SHERIFF'S PLEA

Adjutant General Nash Finds Situation Quieter Monday Night—Musters Troops for Instant Movement.

50 STRIKEBREAKERS DRIVEN FROM CITY

Seven Injured in Serious Clashes—Hardwick Expected to Issue Martial Law Proclamation Today

Acting in response to an appeal from Sheriff H. J. Sweet, of Ware county, for troops to quell serious railroad strike disorders which broke out at Waycross Monday afternoon, Governor Hardwick Monday night issued orders authorizing the state militia to proceed to the scene of the trouble and take charge.

Adjutant-General J. Van Holt Nash, camped at St. Simons island, near Brunswick, immediately established communication with Ware county authorities, who decided that the situation was not at that time sufficiently serious to warrant placing troops in charge.

The adjutant-general accordingly decided, he stated over long distance telephone to The Constitution, to wait until Tuesday morning to ascertain if further developments would necessitate a troop movement. Meanwhile his forces were held in readiness for instant transfer to the scene of the disorders.

Many Clashes Monday.

Reports from Waycross reaching The Constitution Monday night were to the effect that fifteen or twenty clashes had broken out between strikers and railway employees during the course of the day. Six or seven men were badly beaten by gangs of men who rode about the streets in automobiles, while 50 strike-breakers were reported to have been driven out of the city. Railroad shops, it was added, were being heavily guarded.

The militia is now on its annual encampment at St. Simons island. Over long distance telephone Governor Hardwick instructed General Nash to keep in close touch with the situation and hold himself in readiness to dispatch a body of sufficient troops to restore and maintain order.

Attack Strike-breakers.

In his appeal for aid, Sheriff Sweet stated in his message to Governor Hardwick that strike sympathizers and employees had clashed and that the situation was beyond control of the local authorities. The governor acted at once.

The trouble is said to have started at an early hour Monday afternoon when two shop foremen attempted to bring two strike-breakers into the railroad shops. They were said to have been attacked while in the act of repairing an engine and badly beaten.

A number of disorders followed, it is stated, in which alleged strike-breakers were either run out of town or beaten.

Waycross dispatches to The Constitution reported that a Dr. Stewart, of Bristol, was attacked at Satilla bridge on his way to Waycross. His car was shot up. Dr. Stewart is reported tonight in Bristol. This report could not be verified and local officials could find no trace of the occupants of the car.

Governor Hardwick said Monday night that his troop orders would be following Tuesday morning by the necessary proclamation as to Waycross, which means, under the law, that the immediate community will be put under martial law. In addition, the governor will issue a proclamation calling upon all sheriffs and deputies, municipal officers and police authorities to be especially zealous in enforcement of the law all over the state during the strike period, and cautioning them to exercise care and wisdom to keep down friction at all times, but to see that there is proper respect for the law and that the law is rigidly enforced.

"There have been between fifteen and twenty cases of strike-breakers being attacked today," said Sheriff Sweet over long distance to The Constitution Monday night. "Very few arrests have been made, owing to difficulty experienced in identifying men making the assaults."

Shops Under Guard.
The railroad shops are under guard. In almost every instance the men who were beaten were seized on the streets by small bands of men riding in automobiles. There are about 1,000 strikers here with only seven policemen and four or five county officials to cope with the disorders. About fifty strike-breakers have been run out of town and six or seven badly hurt.

"I have talked with the governor and Sheriff Sweet," said General Nash, also over long distance, "and we reached the conclusion that the situation does not demand a dispatch of troops to Waycross tonight. I will take the situation under consideration with the sheriff tomorrow morning."

"At that time, the situation is considered sufficiently serious, troops will be dispatched immediately." Atlanta police were without chief Monday as to the identity of the persons who attacked E. L. and H. H. Ramsey, two shop employees of the N. C. and St. L. railway about 8 o'clock Monday morning when they were intercepted on their way to work.

The two men, who said they are father and son, reported to the county police that they were waiting for a car on Pryor street when three automobiles full of men stopped at the curb near them.

The Ramsey claim that several occupants of the automobiles seized them and forced them into one of the cars. The party drove to a spot on Ashby street, and the two shop workers were taken out and beaten into insensibility, they said.

Guards in the Central of Georgia shops at East Point found the men in a badly beaten condition. Officials of the N. C. and St. L. railway stated the men had been intimidated on previous occasions. A theory that the assailants were strikes or strike sympathizers was being investigated.

BOARD RENEWS EFFORTS FOR PEACE.
Chicago, July 17.—By the Associated Press.—Peace negotiations, halted over the week-end, were resumed by members of the railroad labor board today in an effort to bring about an early settlement of the railway shopmen's strike.

Presidents W. H. Pinley, of the Chicago and Northwestern, and W. G. Bied, of the Chicago and Alton, visited the offices of the labor board today for conferences with Ben Hooper, chairman of the board, while W. L. McMenimen, a labor member of the board, met several high operating executives.

While none of those present would make any statement regarding the subjects discussed, it was intimated some basis for agreement on the five demands presented by H. H. Jewell, leader of the shopmen to Mr. Hooper last week, was sought as preliminary to the calling of a new hearing of all parties before the labor board.

The five demands of the shopmen were announced as the restoration of seniority rights to strikers, establishment of a national adjustment board so that the men may obtain quicker action on grievances than is possible through the labor board, the abolishment of outside contracting by the roads, the restoration of certain rules and working agreements and a return to the scale of wages in effect before the cut ordered by the labor board for July 1 effective simultaneous with the strike.

An indication of the result of the negotiations on these questions, was seen in the statement Saturday night of H. A. Henning, general chairman of the Federated Shopcrafts of the Northwest, that only the refusal of the eastern roads to reinstate strikers

ing workers with their seniority rights, was preventing a settlement as far as the roads of the northwest were concerned.

Unauthorized Strikes.
Hopes for an early peace also were based on the attitude of E. F. Grable, president of the maintenance of way employees, who arrived in Chicago from his headquarters in Detroit tonight for conferences with members of the labor board to get support to prevent carriers from requiring maintenance men to do strikers' work.

While some thousands of the maintenance men were reported from various sections of the country, mostly New York, as having struck, Mr. Grable asserted that such walkouts were unauthorized and that no strike orders would be issued, at least until after a meeting of the grand lodge of his organization in Detroit Thursday, when he will report the result of his negotiations with members of the labor board.

Some additions to the ranks of the strikers also were reported among the clerks, freight handlers, firemen and others, but railway executives declared that the defections had been more than made up by the number of shopmen who returned to work on that last day allowed them on many roads to protect their seniority rights. Disturbances continued to spread, the forces of federal marshals protecting the movement of the mails and interstate traffic were increased and more than 100 injunctions against picketing were granted.

TWO STRIKERS GET JAIL TERM.
Nashville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Henry Marshall and Will Thomas, colored strikers, arrested on charges of beating Hurley Grant, a shopman here, were tried today and sentenced to serve 30 days.

The recorder announced that he recognized the right of the strikers to maintain a picket, but disorder will be promptly punished. He will allow a reopening of the case, however, tomorrow.

200,000 RAIL CLERKS TO VOTE ON STRIKE.
Cincinnati, July 17.—Approximately 200,000 railroad clerks, freight handlers and station and express men are expected to take one, according to information at headquarters at the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Station and Expressmen here today.

Officials refused to be quoted directly or name the roads where a strike vote is now being given. It was stated, however, by Grand President Fitzgerald that wherever the constitutional majority for a strike on any road or system was secured he would grant sanction to strike.

U. S. MARKS TIME IN RAIL STRIKE.

Washington, July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—(Quoted almost exclusively with endeavor to bring about a resumption of work in the coal fields, government officials marked time today in the railroad strike situation. Indications were given that the suspension of activity with respect to the railroad troubles was deliberate and for the purpose of giving full attention to the coal strike.

Emphasis was placed by most officials, however, on the statement that, within the next few days, will govern the government's policy. Everything pointed to deliberation and careful consideration prior to any decision.

Officials in the case of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, which presents unusual features in that it is in the hands of a federal receiver, still tonight awaited the final report of the army inspector-general who went to Denison, Texas, where disorders have occurred, to make an investigation. The inspector-general, Colonel Lincoln, in a telegram to the war department late today said Governor Neff, of Texas had announced there would be a few hours delay before he announced what steps would be taken by the state to preserve order.

The first report was from Denison and said quiet prevailed there when the officer arrived, because no attempt was being made to strike the railway shops and few trains were being moved. The federal officer is understood to indicate that the violence would result if the shops were opened and trains moved with non-union labor.

Secretary Weeks would not indicate the message Governor Neff's reply was not recorded here as satisfactory. It was evident that the war secretary expected the whole question of federal intervention in the railroad situation to be reviewed by the cabinet at its regular meeting tomorrow and that he did not anticipate that instructions would come from the white house to send troops to Denison before that time, regardless of the Governor's attitude.

Some reports of interference with the movement of the mails continued to come in during the day, but the situation in that respect with the exception of an isolated case in Iowa where striking miners and their sympathizers prevented the clearing of a wreck on the Burlington tracks showed an improvement.

EMPLOYEE ATTACKED BY AUGUSTA STRIKERS.
Augusta, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) H. C. Ramsey, employed by the C. & W. C. railroad here, was attacked and beaten severely on the streets late this afternoon by six strikers. Ramsey cut one of the six men across the mouth inflicting a painful wound. All of the party who attacked him escaped.

Ramsey had quit work and was on his way home, having reached the Genesta hotel, near Broad street, when the men jumped out of an automobile and attacked him.

After being struck across the eye by one of the men Ramsey pulled his knife and began cutting the first man he could reach. He defied the gang and dared them to come to him again. The police are investigating.

EXPRESS CLERKS TAKE STRIKE VOTE.
Denial that the Southeastern Express company has defied the war rulings of the United States railroad labor board was made in a statement issued to employees of the company Monday by E. Seages, general manager, when it was learned in Atlanta clerical employees are now taking a strike vote to be tabulated by August 1.

Contentions of the strike agitators are that the Southeastern Express company placed unauthorized wage reductions into effect on August 1, 1921, and that the company ignored an order of the labor board to restore to all the employees affected by the reduction the difference between the rates of pay they have received since August 1, 1921, and the rates of pay they would have received had the wages been frozen at the water tariff to that date remained in effect.

According to D. W. Burrus, chief clerk of the company, only a small number of the clerical employees are members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, and in the event of a walkout the system would not be seriously crippled.

J. H. Hockaday, president of the company, following publication of reports from Chattanooga with reference to the strike ballots, said: "The strikers are not only asking for a wage fix for the employees of the Southeastern Express company and that was effective August 1, 1921, but they are also asking for a wage fix for the employees of the railroad labor board and pending decision by that body I will concede the property as a school site."

COBB GRAND JURY PROBING ATTACK ON L. & N. WORKER.

The Cobb county grand jury was assembled Monday by Judge Blair to investigate an alleged attack on a party employed by the L. & N. railway Saturday by masked men. Judge Blair instructed the grand jury to make investigation of the activities of the "Red" Klan, with reference to several alleged attacks on the L. & N. in Marietta Saturday night. A non-union workman, by the name of Adkins, recently employed by the railroad, was wounded and later beaten. Two guards employed by the road for his protection were driven away by the attackers. Other persons were injured and the workman is now on duty at the tank.

Judge Blair charged the grand jury specifically to investigate the attack and to determine whether or not it was a case of terrorism for the next two months if they found it necessary to discover its perpetrators.

INDIANS WOULD STOP TOO MANY DIVORCES.

Pierre, S. D., July 17.—Two thousand Sioux Indians, gathered at the Catholic Sioux congress at the Cheyenne river reservation, yesterday voted to petition congress to establish an Indian court of domestic relations on the reservation as a preventative against divorces.

Indian speakers declared cheap lawyers were encouraging divorce among the tribal members.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO BE RESPONSIBLE.

to the heirs the proposed school site and then purchase it from them for the sum of approximately $75,000, he agreed to the heirs to the estate," he was asked.

"It would not," he replied positively. The ruling by the city attorney caused a complete change in the plans of members who were in favor of the project. Councilman J. R. Nutting, who introduced the resolution to refer the matter to the bond commission and the education committee, stated that he was against deeding the property back to the Grant heirs and then buying it from them again for a school site.

"I think it would be extremely foolish and bad business judgment to relinquish claim to property already owned by the city to former owners and then expend a large amount to regain its possession," Councilman Nutting declared.

"There are too many other sites that could be used for a school site," he said, "and I firmly believe that we can induce the Grant heirs to agree to the use of the property for school purposes."

Necessity Explained.
W. L. McCalley, Jr., chairman of the board of education, was invited by unanimous vote of council to explain the position of the board to council with regard to the park site. He used maps and other diagrams to stress the necessity of the park site as a location for the school, stating it was the most logical location for the girls' school of any in the city.

Mr. McCalley stated that should council pass favorably on the action of the board and bond commission on the park site, he would assure council that actual work on the structure would begin within the next 90 days, just as soon as the plans were completed. He also showed the accessibility to the park property by street car service and other thoroughfares.

Alderman A. H. Cochran, who presided at the meeting, warned council of the importance of its decision in favor of the school site. He declared it would be a violation of moral obligations of council to the late L. & N. to infringe upon the terms which Mr. Grant intended the park should be used.

"Plenty of Other Sites."

The same attitude was taken by Alderman J. O. Carpenter, who declared that there were plenty of other sites around Atlanta that could be used equally as well for the school site without going into the parks.

Harry Hodges, clerk, spoke at length on the advantages afforded by the park site and stated that even if it were necessary to deed the property back to the Grant heirs and then purchase it for $75,000, that the amount would be a small sum to pay for such a valuable tract.

Councilman J. A. Couch, Councilman Robert L. Gordon and others voiced their objection to using the park site as the location of the school. The motion of Councilman Nutting was then voted on and carried by a majority of sixteen votes to eight against it. Efforts will be made at once to ascertain the attitude of the Grant heirs and to determine whether they will concede the property as a school site, Councilman Murphy stated.

Considerable discussion followed the resolution of Councilman Gordon to refer the matter to the bond commission and the education committee. Chief Cody that he might attend the annual convention of fire chiefs to be held in San Francisco in August. The city attorney ruled that it was illegal to appropriate funds to public officers to attend such conventions.

St. John Is Cleared.

Council voted to accept a certified check for $107,451 in full payment for alleged shortages uncovered in the records of W. G. St. John, former secretary of the water board. Acceptance of this check was approved Friday by the finance committee of council.

Objection was voiced by Councilman Couch to closing the St. John matter without prosecution.

"As I see it the whole thing is nothing more than rank stealing of the people's money," asserted Councilman Couch. "If you go out here and break into a bank and steal money, you'll find yourself in the toils of the law. There isn't the slightest difference in either case."

"If it were a street sweeper who had stolen a dollar, every member of this council would be in favor of prosecuting him. And he'd probably get fifty or twenty years in the chain-gang."

Mr. Couch, when informed that the total amount of the alleged shortage was contained in the certified check, withdrew his opposition to the resolution.

seem must be done on a long distance basis, which is a rather disagreeable thought, especially in the face of recent reports from North Dakota where Senator McCumber failed in a long distance campaign. Then, too, it is being pointed out, the republicans are on the defensive this year, and democrats would hardly be the losers in the game.

The stumbling block lies in the tariff. Ship subsidy and bonus might be enacted within a reasonable time, but observers who have watched the course of tariff legislation, do not believe that the Fordney-McCumber measure can be disposed of either by the senate, the house or by the conference committee until late fall. The senate to date has passed the nine hundredth paragraph of a bill with 1,369 paragraphs. Further, many of the debatable issues in the bill have been passed over and still have to come up for discussion. After the total number of paragraphs are disposed of, there are 240 sections covering administrative features and general provisions which must be considered.

2,082 Amendments.
In reporting the bill, the senate committee recommended 2,082 amendments to the measure as passed by the house. Since then, the committee has offered numerous changes and the democratic minority is prepared to offer in the neighborhood of 1,000 amendments, yet to be considered.

The senate nearly three months, having been presented for debate on April 20. So far, only committee amendments bearing upon rates have been considered. Under the rules, no minority amendments may be considered until after those by the committee have been disposed of. Therefore it is estimated that the senate has acted upon one third of the bill.

Greater still, the remaining two-thirds include items of a highly controversial nature, such as the duties on silk, flax, wool, sugar, leather and other products of a like character. Then, too, there are the clauses relating to arbitrary fixing of rates by the president, reciprocity, and the reappraisal of values upon protest. All of which, together with the fight to come over American valuation, will provide ground for unlimited discussion, and carrying the ultimate date of vote very in the future.

Six Months More?

Should the senate move along no faster with the remainder of the bill than which has already been dealt with, five or six months, in the least, will be needed to pass it, if there is a majority found in favor of it in the end. It is thought that the conference between members of the house and senate to arrive at some agreement will take a month.

Congress set out in January, 1921, to write a new tariff bill; more than 18 months have passed with the measure still the unfinished business of the senate. No legislation in recent years has moved so slowly toward final consummation, it is said.

During approximately 15 months the bill was in the course of preparation in the ways and means committee of the house and the senate finance committee. The bulk of the time was spent in closed sessions, public hearings covering only a few weeks of the time. A portion of the time, of course, was spent in debate in the two chambers.

Finally Reported.
On January 6, 1921, after long months of secret hearings, the ways and means committee opened public hearings, but closed them on February 10. The bill was finally reported to the house six months after the hearings commenced, or on July 10. Debate in the house opened on July 7, and under a special rule the bill was passed July 21, 1921. Sent to the senate next day, the bill was referred to the finance committee, which, after hearings for a period, reported it on April 11, 1922—eight months and three weeks after it had been received from the house.

A discussion began on April 20 and has continued for almost three months.

The senate finance committee practically reworked the tariff bill and considered the question of fixing the proposed duties on the basis of American valuation, as used in the house, the old plan of computing duties according to foreign valuation, was reverted to. Other radical changes were also made. Reciprocity features of the house bill were altered and authority to revise rates and make them more favorable was granted the president. Permission was granted for goods to be reappraised upon complaint, and in a large number of cases the duties were raised beyond the house figure.

These factors with the results that necessarily follow have been taken into careful consideration by members of the senate who realize any hope of an early passage is futile. Yet with the campaigns approaching nearer each day, they realize the importance of being on the ground at the time.

It is seen by observers of the possibility of a convenient situation to arise—that under the increasing domination of republican members of the high schedules and radical provisions, disgruntled senators may prevail upon administration leaders to commit to tariff bill to the committee for revision. This would produce a desired coup in certain circles and would offer the opportunity to those coming up for re-election to return home for participation in the campaign.

COTTON SCHEDULES BEFORE SENATE.

Washington, July 17.—The senate moved slowly today with the administration tariff bill, becoming involved in several lengthy controversies over rates in the cotton schedules. Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, continued his fight against the duties proposed but was unsuccessful in his efforts to have the committee rates cut down.

Discussing the additional duty of 12 per cent ad valorem on fancy woven cloth, which finally was approved 34 to 23, Senator Lenroot stated and Senator Smoot, of Utah, in charge of the cotton schedule for the finance committee majority, conceded, that this amendment as originally reported by the committee would be a compensatory duty of 10 cents a pound proposed on long staple cotton in yarns finer than number 70 and on yarns of long staple cotton in finished cloth, but this rate was approved 32 to 22.

One hundred Turkish students are soon to be received at Moscow university for full college terms.

THOUGHT HEALING LIKENED TO RADIO

Arrival of additional delegates and a greatly increased attendance at the auditorium meetings marked the second day of the ninth annual congress of the International New Thought alliance.

Robert Bryan Harrison, of Atlanta, director of the New Thought Free School of Health, was one of the principal speakers Monday night at the "radio" session. He likened the process of transmitting thought waves of healing to radio broadcasting.

Other speakers at the night session were Mrs. E. T. Chapin, metaphysician and lecturer of New York city, whose topic was "Attuned to God, Radiating Good Will to Men," and Mrs. Rebecca D. Allen, of Louisville, Ky., Truth Center, who spoke on "The Message in the Air."

James A. Edgerton of Washington, D. C., president of the alliance, presided at the evening meeting.

An address on "The Power of God's Band" by Miss Ida B. Elliott, president of the California College of Divine Science, Piedmont, California, was heard at the afternoon session, which began at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Eleanor Graham, who, together with Robert Bryan Harrison, was largely instrumental in securing the congress for Atlanta, presided. The session was opened with an organ recital by Charles A. Sheldon, Jr.

Tuesday's program begins with the meditation service at Taft hall at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock a conference of district presidents, field secretaries, leaders and teachers will be held. A business session of the alliance, attended by members only, will be held at 10 o'clock. At noon the daily lending meeting will be conducted by Vincent Redmond, assistant teacher of the Home of Truth, Los Angeles.

Charles H. Watts will preside at the 2:30 o'clock session Tuesday. Alexander McInnes, of Scotland, representing the British Section, will speak on "Rebuilding the City of Peace." Mrs. Elizabeth M. Chester, leader of the New Thought Temple society of Nashville, Tenn., will speak on "Are We Changing?"

At the 8 o'clock meeting, at which James A. Edgerton will preside, Dr. Henry Victor Moran, of Park University, Chicago, will speak on the topic, "The Lost Church of Christ."

NEGRO IS KILLED AND WHITE MAN WOUNDED IN FIGHT

Athens, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Percy McAdams, young white man, is at a local hospital seriously wounded, possibly fatally, while Sid Simpson, a negro, is dead, as a result of a shooting incident at Madison late Saturday night.

Reports from Madison are to the effect that an altercation arose between McAdams and the negro in a grocery store. They were warned not to cause a disturbance in the store and they went out into the back yard where the shooting occurred, it is stated.

This is the time when you must positively use care in selecting foods—when you must use care in selecting articles of food, to be sure that you get the real food values that help build up good health.

You must have the vital elements in foods if you want to keep well. These vital elements cause the food you eat to assimilate—it means health and growth in children—also in grown-ups. It means replacement of worn out tissue, the building of lost bodily vigor. In fact, it is absolutely necessary to life itself.

Many food authorities agree that pure baking powder and good plain flour are much better for food value and health than many self-rising flours.

For the best of health—for the most economical results—use only plain flour and good baking powder.

YOU, AS A GOOD HOUSEWIFE

know that the time to add anything to flour is just before you begin your baking, not months before and you also know that no prepared mixtures such as the self-rising flour can be as fresh—can be as certain in results—as the good old fashioned straight flour and pure baking powder.

BRUNSWICK BIDS FOR STATE PORT

Claiming that Brunswick has the finest natural harbor on Georgia's coast, and one of the finest in the world, a committee of six of that city's leading citizens are in Atlanta to appear before the state's port commission and prove that it should recommend Brunswick to the legislature as the site for state-owned port terminals now under consideration.

The port commission has agreed not to make its recommendation for a site for the terminals until after the convention of Georgia Press association now in session at Quitman, Ga. The delegation from Brunswick will appear before the commission some time between now and Saturday.

One of their strongest arguments is the contention that Savannah, the site which has been adopted by the commission by resolution, is nearly four times farther from the open sea than Brunswick, and that it takes seven times as much money to unload and load a ship in the city which the commission has favored, after what the Brunswick delegation calls a cursory inspection.

The Canadian engineer, F. C. Cowie, employed by the port commission to study available sites some time ago, made Brunswick his first choice, but said he would recommend Savannah if that city would grant a particular site there. Savannah granted that site and the commission adopted the engineer's report as its choice. What the Brunswick delegation now desires is an investigation on a large enough scale to include all data in the case. Its members express themselves as feeling confident that such an investigation will lead the commission to ask the legislature to adopt their town for the terminals.

Available Water. There are 40 miles of available deep water front on the peninsula on which Brunswick is located, they explain, adding that a vessel drawing 23 feet of water can go all the way to the last dock. Ships of over 500-foot length have turned around in the harbor under the open sea, it is declared. The harbor is so spacious that ocean-going steam vessels enter regularly without aid of local pilots.

"We are not fighting the port terminals idea," said J. W. Simmons, president of Brunswick Board of Trade, one of the delegates. "What we want is a thorough investigation in the interest of the people of Georgia. This thing will not be financed by people of Brunswick but by taxpayers of Georgia, and we want them to have the best harbor available in their state. Brunswick belongs to them. Its natural land-locked harbor has sufficient deep water anchorage and docking space to be developed for use until the end of time."

"But we are insisting on a square deal. If the people of Georgia don't get the most for their money in this affair, and if they don't get the finest natural harbor on this or any coast, it will not be the fault of the people of Brunswick. We mean to fight for Georgia's developing her best harbor until the last ditch."

Federal Expenditures. Mr. Simmons pointed out that the government has already spent $14,000,000 on the Savannah harbor, whereas it has spent only $2,000,000 on that of Brunswick. Brunswick's natural harbor, situated as it is near the open sea, does not require the dredging required at Savannah, he claimed, as there is no river to dredge.

The delegation consists of the following Brunswick men: C. H. Shedd, don, vice president, National bank; M. J. Welsh, general manager, Atlantic Refining company; Frank M.

Man, With Shotgun, Woman, With Ax, Murder 26 Rattlesnakes

Legends have grown out of the killing of a single rattlesnake in many parts of the world.

Many who have had dubious heads shaken and sympathetic smiles given their accounts of killing four or five rattlesnakes in a day.

But when word comes in from E. W. Weldon, 74 Home avenue, that he beheaded, shot, and otherwise extinguished 26 real rattlesnakes, the cup makes the rounds. It is a thing to make hardened abstainers cry for strong drink. Here is the way it happened:

Mr. Weldon was trimming a hedge in the front yard. A rattlesnake appeared and was forthwith murdered with a pick. Then several more came along, and he gathered his shotgun, called for Miss Connie Freeman, 78 Home avenue, who came on the run with an ax, and the massacre began. When it was all over 26 rattlesnakes had bit the dust.

It appears that a kindergarten had been disturbed, for all of the reptiles were small shavers except one.

NEGRO COOK KILLED IN SEABOARD WRECK

Savannah, July 17.—Five coaches on the Seaboard Air Line train number three, New York to Jacksonville, turned turtle at 5:30 o'clock this morning one mile south of Cox, Ga. A negro dining car cook was killed and several passengers injured. The train struck a broken rail and five of the cars were tossed into a ditch. The engine remained on the track with two cars.

TAKING OVER ENJOIN COUNTY OFFICIALS

Americus, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Taxpayers here have filed suit in the superior court of Sumter county, enjoining the county commissioners from contributing further to the Georgia Good Roads association.

The commissioners had appropriated $1,500 to the association and $500 of this amount has been paid. The suit says that the board held responsible as individuals for that amount and that they should be required to reimburse the county treasury.

Judge Z. A. Littlejohn signed a writ of habeas corpus for the commissioners from paying any further funds to the association and the hearing for Tuesday, July 25. The petitioners are W. E. Mitchell, C. I. Brady, J. A. McCree, W. C. Sullivan, J. D. Williams and J. A. Hall, all prominent. The commissioners are N. A. Ray, R. S. Oliver, C. H. Hawkins, J. E. Pool and S. E. Statnam.

Allegations Made.

The petition alleges that the commissioners entered into an agreement with T. G. Farmer, Jr., managing director of the Georgia Good Roads association, to contribute $2,000, the sum to be paid in $500 installments to be used in promoting the campaign for $75,000,000 road bonds. The agreement, it is alleged, does not appear upon the minutes of the commissioners, but, in accordance with the agreement, a bill for $500 was presented to the commissioners, which was approved, it is alleged, and ordered paid.

Following service of papers in the case, Neil A. Ray, chairman of the board, issued a statement setting forth the position of the board, in which he says:

"It might be illegal. I don't know. We were doing about that just like I would do for myself. We thought it was a good proposition if we could get back about $175,000 for the county. We were acting for the interests of the people of Sumter county. They had confidence in us and elected us to represent them. We have been conscientious in doing that, and we have no inclination to pay any of it back out of our pockets unless the good people of Sumter county say we must."

The money, it is said, was subscribed to the Georgia Good Roads association by the county board, along with a number of other Georgia counties, for the purpose of furthering the interests of the proposed $75,000,000 state highway bond issue. The commissioners took the position that it was to the interest of Sumter county to assist in putting the highway over, inasmuch as the state's plan provided for reimbursing the various counties where permanent highway money had been done on. The plan in the state system, this plan giving Sumter county a refund, up to this time, of something like $175,000 on the county bond money already expended on highways.

Commission's Position.

The members of the county commission are known to be very much alarmed that their action should be questioned by any citizens, and they declare they will not pay back a cent until compelled to do so, taking the position that "they acted in the interest of the county and should be supported by the citizens, instead of being harassed." It is understood that those who have joined in the suit are opponents of the proposed bond issue.

Ask State to Match $50,000 Dormitory Fund for University

Athens, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) The legislature will be asked to match the amount of $50,000 voted last Wednesday by Clarke county for a dormitory for the University of Georgia, making a total of $100,000 available for this purpose, if the law-makers act favorably on the measure, according to university authorities. When the grand jury recommended to the county commissioners that a bond issue be called for the dormitory it was understood that it was to be for men and therefore when the building is completed it will be used for this purpose.

TO RUN FOR COUNCIL ON PARK SITE FIGHT

Because of his fight for the Grady park site for the girls' high school, A. G. Mr. Woodall is the present incumbent whose term of office carries over.

NEGRO IS CAUGHT WITH CORN WHISKY

A car driven by Walt Williams, 22, negro, of 185 Randolph street, containing 15 gallons of corn whisky was captured Monday night about 8:30 by Patrolmen D. L. Taylor and H. J. Waters.

The patrolmen had stationed themselves at Wylie street and Flat Shoals avenue, as they suspected liquor traffic was going on in that section. They had caught a car near there several days ago. Williams had $500 in cash on his person. His wife was with him.

CONDITION UNCHANGED REPORT JUDGE HILL'S

The condition of Judge Benjamin H. Hill, who has been very low for the past few days, was reported unchanged at a late hour Monday night. His respiration and pulse seemed to be "as good as could be expected," it was stated at his home.

STUCK BY TRAIN, FIREMAN RECOVERING

I. T. King, 28, at 1308 Marietta street, was Monday night recovering from injuries sustained early yesterday morning when struck by a Central of Georgia train at the McDaniel street crossing. His leg is said to have been badly crushed.

King, who is a fireman for the railroad on which he was hurt, is said to have been dodging an automobile, stepping in the path of the approaching train.

Pate Is Released.

John F. Pate, 40, of 470 Beecher street, who was arrested Monday under a warrant from Warren, Pa., was later released by order of officials of that county.

Pate is said to have been wanted on the charge of "jumping" a board bill. He recently gained newspaper notoriety in connection with the fight at Five Points between Carl Hutcherson, Frank Adair, J. C. Senter and Pete Dalry.

Capitol Gossip.

BY PAUL STEVENSON

Interesting reports that Representative Murphy M. Holloway, of Fulton county, will be asked to run for the position of speaker pro tem of the next house if he is re-elected from Fulton county were heard at the capitol Monday. The present speaker pro tem is Zack Arnold, of Clay, and he is not a candidate for re-election.

Several friends of Representative Holloway discussed the situation Monday and agreed that he would fill this place admirably if selected by the house for the job. No other name has been mentioned for the place so far.

Speaker Cecil Neill, of the house, is a candidate for re-election to the house and also for re-election as speaker. The name of Representative Culppepper, of Fayette, has been mentioned in the race for speaker next year.

It was learned Monday that President Herbert Clark, of the senate, is preparing to run for representative from Cobb county next year. Several members of the senate are running for the house, while several house members are also running for the senate this year.

Former Members Visitors.

Two former members of the state senate, Z. V. Peacock, of Pulaski, and Sam Olive, of Richmond, were visitors at the capitol and looked in on the two houses. They were granted the privilege of the floor in the house. Mr. Olive served as president of the senate two years ago and later made the race for congress in the tenth district, being defeated by Congressman Carl Vinson.

Representative Beckham, of Dougherty, complimented the Atlanta police department Monday for recovering his automobile, which was stolen Saturday. The car was stolen in front of Mr. Beckham's apartments on Forrest avenue. It was found abandoned Sunday by policemen, and was turned over to Mr. Beckham Monday.

The genial "Jake" who says his last name is immaterial, who presides over the Kimball house cigar store, came in for a lot of "kidding" from the members of the legislature Monday night. Jake's wife appeared at the stand with her face swathed in bandages and when several friends asked the cause of the accident she pointed at Jake. She really was injured in an accident but some of the legislators hit upon the idea of preparing a bill local in its nature to cover Jake's case and they kept him worried all afternoon and night.

"I'll do a lot of things but I won't beat my wife," Jake said he seemed unable to convince the members of the legislature of this.

J. M. Huling, chief of the county police of Fulton county, visited his friend Cecil Neill, speaker of the house Monday. Chief Huling said the department has about recovered its normal state since the unrest caused by bomb outrages in his county. He came up to hold a conference with the prohibition enforcement officer.

A local bill providing for changes in the charter of College Park to give the school board at that place certain powers and to make the charter conform to supreme court decisions in which the city has been interested was introduced in the house Monday by the Fulton delegation.

Representative Jones Perryman, of Talbot, was granted a leave of absence by the house Monday to attend the meeting of the Georgia Press association at Quitman.

William J. Vereen, of Moultrie, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, was a visitor at the capitol Monday and called on Governor Hardwick.

Ninth Ward People To Pick Candidates And Avoid Contest

At a meeting of the improvement club of the ninth ward Monday night, a committee of ten was appointed to canvass the political situation of the ward and report to a meeting next week a candidate for city councilman, to succeed Walter C. Sims who has announced as candidate for mayor.

This committee is also to report on a candidate for school commissioner, as the ninth ward would be allowed one under the revised charter.

The object is to avoid tying the ward up in a political free-for-all if possible.

The meeting was to have been held in the Greenwood Avenue Pharmacy, but the crowd was so large that it was held in the street. Edgar Craighead presided and Don C. Miller addressed the meeting.

An open session was held tonight, presided over by Solon M. Davis, noble grand of Rose hill lodge. The Rebekahs of the division also were in session today. Mrs. S. H. Edge, of Americus, president of the Georgia assembly of Rebekahs, was present.

AUTO VICTIM DIES;
NO ARRESTS MADE

J. W. Kelley, 70, of 480 Whitehall street, died early Monday morning from a fractured skull and internal injuries sustained Sunday when struck by an automobile near Buck-head as he was crossing the road with two companions, one of whom, Bengor Congar, was seriously injured. Congar is now at the Grady hospital with a fractured leg and bad bruises about the body.

County police who rushed to the scene of the accident within a few minutes after it happened, had been unable at a late hour last night to gather any clue upon which to base an arrest. Two investigations, however, in which city officers are cooperating, will be prosecuted vigorously and relentlessly. It was announced, and nothing will be left undone to apprehend the driver of the machine.

According to information furnished
the officers, the driver of the machine was evidently under the influence of whisky, as he seemed to be unable to control his automobile. It is said, snaking from first one side of the road to the other. It is said he approached Kelley and Congar and his friend without sounding any warning whatsoever, and he was traveling at a high rate of speed.

street, and Sol Cohen, 20, of 304 Richardson street, who were also injured in accidents during Sunday, were Monday reported to be resting well and their recovery is expected within a short time.

Snelling was injured in a head-on collision, witnesses say, with a street car on Peachtree street at Merritts avenue. He is said to have been going north along Peachtree street, while the street car was coming toward town. In some unexplained manner, he is said to have gotten too far on the left hand (west side) of Peachtree street, which caused the collision.

Cohen was thrown from his motorcycle when it skidded from under him on Pace's Ferry road. A friend who was riding with Cohen was slightly bruised and scratched.

While the time has not been definitely fixed, it is thought by relatives that Kelley's funeral will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon from the residence, with burial in Miss Sally Kelley's three granddaughters, Mrs. E. E. Scoggins and Leo Kendall, of Atlanta, and Mrs. George C. grandchildren, S. Scoggins, Jr., and

COMMENDS MEXICANS

C. W. McClure, Atlanta merchant, just back from an 11-day trip through Mexico, says that country is peaceful, on the surface, at least. Soldiers guard the trains and railway stations,
but only as a precautionary measure.
Mr. McClure found business conditions improving, and the unemployment situation well in hand. Mexico City impressed him as being the most modern city in the whole country. The hotel accommodations everywhere are bad, but the railroad service is very good.

The natives with whom he came in United States and seemed anxious to Assault Mystery

Arouses Americus;
Murder Rumor

Americus, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Eugene Dixon, negro, was found lying upon the road on Hardboiled hill, near the Scarborough store, early Monday morning. He was found by a white man, who was driving a touring car, and was taken to the Americus hospital.

It is not known how he was injured, as he has been in a semiconscious state since found. Apparently, he was struck with some heavy instrument, and it is believed, was assaulted by some unknown person.

Within a few hundred yards of where Dixon was found, W. H. Scarborough, a wealthy reclusive, was foully murdered about a year ago.
No trace of Scarborough's murderers has ever been found, and the resemblance between his wounds and those of Dixon has caused some here to believe that an organized band of murderers is operating in that section of the county.

tution Leased Wire.)—Recurrent rumors of former President Woodrow Wilson's sudden death have acted to keep Washington alive with excitement during the past few days. Due to Mr. Wilson's secluded life, the rumors caused much agitation until his falsity could be established.

No one seems to know how the reports started, but the latest of the kind was circulated a few nights ago.
However, it was found upon investigation that the former president had been motoring during the afternoon and felt exceedingly well. Those close to Mr. Wilson declare there has been a striking improvement in his health and over his condition in not long ago. Although yet somewhat lame and walking with difficulty, the ex-president is said to be cheerful and active under the circumstances. Saturday night, Mr. Wilson attended a local theater and was given vociferous applause by the crowd waiting to catch a glimpse of him outside.

The former president has continued to reside at his Washington residence since his retirement from office, and has not left the capital since he returned here in September, 1919. His last presence on a railroad train was that on which he toured the country in behalf of the league of nations.

CO-OPERATIVE SALES
DAY AT THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)
A co-operative sales day has been endorsed by the Thomasville Chamber of Commerce in response to a movement by the merchants of this city for such a day. It is planned to hold a day in which special bargains will be offered to the farmers and other residents of the country districts to induce them to come to town and to bring their produce.

Arrangements will be made to handle certain products for the farmers on the plan of a market bureau. A day will be selected, probably for some time next month, and a number of attractions and amusements will be furnished in addition to the many special bargains that will be put on by the merchants.

LUXURY TAX BILL
IS BEING PREPARED

Monday's session of the senate was featured by a bill offered by Senators Herbert Clay and A. O. Nix proposing a privilege tax on mortgages in place of the ad valorem tax.

The measure was offered as a constitutional amendment and was referred to the committee on constitutional amendments, which will give it early consideration.

A bill is in course of preparation
by a special committee of the senate to impose a special tax levy on luxuries, such as opera, moving pictures, soft drinks and perfumery.

Three bills were passed by the senate, which was in session but little more than an hour Monday.

Makes Bond Easier.
One was a bill by Senator Thomas,
of the third, which provides that "it shall be the right of every person convicted of a crime in this state, wherein his sentence is for a term less than 12 years in the penitentiary and in which case a motion for a new trial shall have been filed as provided by law, that the judge of the trial court shall immediately assess a supersedeas bond, the amount to be determined by the presiding judge, which right immediately upon the filing of such motion for a new trial, is vested in the person convicted of said offense, without having to wait for the hearing of said motion or for the signing or filing of a bill of exceptions in such case."

The second was a bill by Senator Collumb, of the thirteenth, providing for the establishment of at least one consolidated public school in each Georgia county and setting aside $100-000 each year for maintenance of such institutions.

The third was a bill by Senator Golucke, of the nineteenth, to amend section 4321 of the civil code by extending the time limit for renewing certain cases for six months.

Senator Thomas, of the third, introduced a bill designed to break up the practice among municipal and county court officers of allowing defendants to plead guilty. His measure makes it a misdemeanor for officers or attaches to give advice of this nature to prisoners in their custody.

Auto License Plan.
Senator Wall, of the fifth, was the author of a proposed amendment to the Georgia motor vehicle law, which provides that the owner of any motor vehicle, who has made application to the secretary of state for his license and who produces a postoffice money order receipt or an express money order receipt for the proper amount of his license fee and the receipt indorsed with his signature, that he shall be allowed to operate the vehicle for a period of 15 days from date of receipt without a license plate attached to his car.

Another feature of the session Monday was the introduction of a bill by Senators David and Clarke submitting to the people a constitutional amendment authorizing the general assembly to consolidate the offices of tax receiver and tax collector in all Georgia counties, where this is deemed advisable.

The senate committee was authorized under a resolution adopted Friday to obtain from the commissioner of agriculture and the heads of all other departments a detailed statement of employees, salaries, fees and expenses for the fiscal year 1921-1922 sent out notices to the department heads Monday asking that these reports be submitted by Tuesday. Members of the committee are Senators Cone, Boykin and Thomas.

HITS STREET CAR,
IS BADLY INJURED

Savannah, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)
A warrant was issued today for Patsy Grogan, a well-known Tybee island
Mrs. Elizabeth Hornak, living near Grogan's cottage on the island. Mrs.
Hornak is in a local hospital in a serious condition.

The shooting is said to have occurred when the Hornaks declined to leave the common backyard of the adjoining cottage, where they were treating their poultry for mites.

The chief of police of Tybee township arrested Grogan, but released him on his own recognizance, it being declared that the shooting was accidental. Grogan declared he fired his shotgun at the fowl house, thinking a thief was visiting it.

Grogan was the first settler on the south end of famous Tybee, having first visited the island as a seaman

THE TARIFF COLLAPSE.

All indications seem to foreshadow a complete collapse of the G. O. P. high tariff program; and the Fordney-McCumber bill, if enacted at all, will in all probability be so mild and so "tame" in its provisions as to be scarcely recognizable by its friends, especially by the privileged interests whose wishes it was originally designed to meet.

"The republican tariff bill," says
a United News staff correspondent at Washington, "is being so emasculated by amendments, compromises and modifications that it promises to have only a 'Volstead kick' when finally passed by the senate"—which means a "kick" of only "one-half of one per cent." or less.

In its original form it was admittedly the most extreme "protectionist" measure ever drawn outranking by far even the notorious Payne-Aldrich bill—so extreme, in fact, and so obviously designed as a citadel of privilege that even self-respecting republicans and republican newspapers in all parts of the country gagged at it and have rebelled against its enactment.

Indeed, the most significant circumstance in connection with the evidently impending collapse of the "old guard" tariff program is that it is being brought about, not as a result of division on party lines, but by the attitude of republicans themselves who are joining forces with the democratic minority to save the masses of the people from the oppression of such a law as this bill contemplates.

As a last desperate effort to insure passage of the bill, thus to measurely redeem their pre-election party pledges to "the interests," the republican "regulars" sought to shut off debate and force
the tariff bill to a vote without further modifications or amendment.

But in that they failed, by reason of a coalition of democratic and independent republican strength, and since that time conditions from the G. O. P. "inner circle" standpoint have been going from bad to worse.

Not only have the so-called progressive republican senators, such as Borah, Johnson, La Follette, Morris, et al., come out openly against enactment of the bill in any semblance of its original form,
but conservatives of the Lenroot and Smoot school have announced their intention to throw their strength with the foes of high protection and aid in defeating the measure in its entirety unless it is modified to an extent precluding
the approval of its would-be beneficiaries.

In the meantime the debate
drags on, and when, if ever, the tariff bill is finally enacted probably it will be in a form wholly disappointing to the high protectionists who had staked their future political fortunes upon it.

If you're a cancer—save your life; chop it early—with the knife.

Least we forget: Overdressed
babies also suffer in hot weather.

Fact is: The less we dress the new arrival the greater the chance of his survival.

THE OVERDUE PLEDGES.

Six months ago 4,400 subscribed varying amounts of money, to be paid in quarterly installments, for the support of the city's five principal welfare agencies, the Anti-Tuberculosis association, the Associated Charities, the Boy Scouts, the Young Women's Christian association and the Travelers' Aid society.

With the payments for the third quarter falling due on August 1, it is reported that payments aggregating more than $16,000 have been carried over from the first and second quarterly remittance periods, and are still listed on the books of the "Five-Way Opportunity" organization as accounts unpaid and overdue.

Naturally the work of the welfare institutions, which anticipated the prompt fulfillment of all pledges upon dates of maturity, is suffering in proportion with the failure of subscribers to live up to their obligations made during the "Five-Way" campaign of last February.

It seems hardly possible that so many of our good citizens who responded with such generosity to the appeal that was made in behalf of these five worthy organizations during the city's first community-chest campaign could now prove to be either disinterested or disregardful of their obligations—obligations made, no doubt, in the best of faith, and banked on by the beneficiaries.

Surely if they would look into the work that is being carried on in the name of humanity by those agencies, and which is so vital to the welfare of Atlanta, they would not neglect to pay their pledges promptly when due.

It is reported that the organizations sharing the proceeds from the "Five-Way Opportunity" movement are in actual need of funds with which to meet their obligations, and that their work stands in imminent danger of radical curtailment because so many of the campaign pledges, upon which their respective 1922 programs were based,
have not been fulfilled.

In view of the increasing demands that are being made upon each of these five organizations, even a slackening of their activities or any abridgment of their capacity to render service would be in the nature of a serious public misfortune.

Let us hope that the danger of such a development will be speedily removed by a prompt squaring of accounts by all who have thus far failed to make their promised contributions.

Every subscriber owes it to these five splendid charitable philanthropic and humanitarian agencies, to the good name of his city and to his own conscience to make good the pledge to which last February
he affixed his signature.

SALESMAN WANTED.

One of the most frequent advertisements now appearing in newspapers the country over is under the heading, "Salesman Wanted." Very often it is plural;
many concerns want all the good salesmen they can get. There is, apparently, no end to the demand;
the supply is far from meeting it.

With its possibilities of substantial earning power from the start, salesmanship offers one of the most attractive fields open to the young man of today; for it is from the ranks of successful salesmen that managers and higher executives are very often chosen. The best executives are those well-trained in the art of dealing with customers.

There are men in Atlanta today who would simply consider as "clerks"—and certainly all honor attaches to the name—who are earning as high as $5,000, and some even up to $10,000, a year, for simply selling the products handled by the stores in which they are employed. A prominent Atlanta clothing store pays some of his men salaries and commissions as much as $7,500 a year for simply selling suits of clothes to men. The employer gets good clothes and advertises them well in the Atlanta newspapers. The men have built up a following, through their possession and cultivation of essential salesmanship qualities, which has brought them substantial incomes.

But this is merely the beginning of the possibilities in successful salesmanship. One other quality or condition, might make splendid executive managers of these $5,000 and $7,500 clerks. It might be in them now, or before them, if they only knew it. There is the well-known case of one young Atlanta who formerly sold a single, widely-used and well-advertised product here at home. He is now president of the company which manufactures
the article in question, and enjoys a salary of something like $50,000 a year. And there are other cases comparable to this, right here at home—cases in which young men have achieved business leadership and success, because they knew how to sell.

All of this may have been said
many times before, but it will bear repetition because salesmanship, like advertising, to which it is closely akin, is an art that is still in its development stage.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM B. BRYAN, M. D.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Constitution)

IVY, OAK AND SUMMER POISON.

Poison ivy is a vine or trailing shrub having leaves which are always divided into three leaflets. Two of the leaflets are opposite and have short stalks, and the third or middle leaflet has a longer stalk. The under surface of the leaflets has a velvety covering of fine hairs. The margins of the leaflets are less notched than the common five leaflet leaves of the harmless Virginia creeper which many mistake for poison ivy; a rather typical feature of the poison ivy leaf is the tendency of the leaflets
to be more deeply notched on one side.

Poison oak is more common on the Pacific coast and in the far west. This shrub has leaflets arranged precisely like poison ivy leaflets, but poison oak leaflets are similar to oak leaves in shape. Poison oak bushes sometimes attain a height of five feet. Another variety of poison oak is common in the east, having the same three leaflet feature but the leaflets resemble the leaves of scrub oak.

Poison sumac (in some places called poison elder, poison ash, poison dogwood) is a small tree growing in swamps, with smooth gray bark and leaves 8 or 10 inches long, having a slender stalk on which the separate leaflets are arranged in opposi-ting pairs. Unlike the common fragrant or harmless sumacs, poison
sumac bears white or yellowish fruit, whereas the common harmless sumac
bears red fruit.

All of these poisonous plants are of the Rhus family. The irritant or poisonous principle of all is an oil called toxicoendrol and an infinitely small quantity of toxicoendrol will go a long way to spoil an otherwise happy summer.

Business before pleasure. Now for the medicine.

One susceptible to poisoning by any of these Rhus plants and contemplating an excursion in rustic territory may immunize himself against the poisoning by taking internally the—well, a colleague who I regret to say is of the homeopathic leaning, assures me it is practically the third dilution or potency of the drug, thus fo, as used by adherents of that faith. I greatly fear my colleague is right, but of course, it would never do for me to come right out flat with any such admission, for there may be a few allopathic doctors living somewhere, for all I know. At any rate laymen and healers are forever speaking of "allopathic" doctors
as though something of the kind occurs somewhere. The third dilution hypodermically, I am not competent to give assurance about that,
but here is the formula which is suggested by Dr. J. F. Schamberger for immunization:

Tincture of Rhus toxicoendrol (or whatever other species of the Rhus family you may be sensitive to), 15 drops.

Alcohol, 75 drops.
Syrup of orange, enough to make three ounces.

(The tincture should be a 10 per cent tincture of the fresh leaf of the plant, prepared by a pharmacist.)

Directions: Take a dose three times daily, after meals, in about a wine-glassful of water. Begin with two drops, and increase by two drops
every dose until you are taking 18 drops, then take just one teaspoonful once a day after eating, till the supply is used up. It is well to keep some on hand and take a teaspoonful once or twice a week throughout the season
if you are frequently exposed. No doubt the third dilution or potency of Rhus tox would be equally effective against sensitivity to poison ivy.

A treatment for the dermatitis or skin inflammation which seems to be curative in a day or two consists in hypodermic injections of a very dilute extract of the plant—one or two doses usually relieving the itching and burning completely.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Chasing Lice.

Kindly give your advice about cleansing the hair of lice.—J. B.
Answer—If I didn't know I had hair, but maybe you want to rid the scalp of company. The best way I know is soaking the hair with kerosene for two hours (avoiding fire and flame, of course) then a shampoo.
To remove nits, (which are the eggs and adhere to the shafts of the hairs near the scalp) draw strands of hair through a soft cloth wet with time with not vinegar. Repeat all this daily or until no more lice or nits are found.

Is It Injurious for Me to Ride a Bi- cycle?

I am 13 years old, 56 inches tall and weigh 65 pounds. Some people say it would be very injurious to me and others say it would be good for me.—Rose M. L.

Answer—No. Bicycle riding is a fine exercise for girls.

Scrofula Hereditary?

My grandfather, a very guardian constantly taunts me about the character of one of my deceased parents who bequeathed scrofula to me, he is now 15, and my grandfather declares that because I have considerable dandruff in my hair and a ravenous appetite that I have scrofula and that I got it from one of my parents.—D. R. M.

Answer—That isn't scrofula. Scrofula was an old-fashioned name for tuberculosis of the lymph nodes ("glands") at the sides of the neck.
Even that was no reflection on the character of the victim or his ancestors.

Afternoon Siesta.

I am a boy of 16, in good health,
and I sleep 8 or 10 hours each night, yet I yawn and feel sleepy afternoons and can lie down and sleep anywhere any time. Does it hurt me to sleep in the daytime?—M. C.

Answer—No. An afternoon nap is fine medicine for a growing boy.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE HAYNES, M. D.
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

OTHERS.

What a word this is—anyway—others. What would you do, what would I do without—others?

Nothing that we attain is worth the striving unless it is made a part of the general scheme of others.
Try to get along without others in any way, and see what happens.

No one has a taste of real happiness until he has served, until he has given something away, until he has felt the rebounding appreciation of others.

Even the birds and animals understand. You rarely see them alone.
They must have their kind with them.
None of us are self-made. We are all others-made.

I have had an opportunity of watching many workmen of late. I note that they work together, but they each depend upon the other—and at lunch time they do not draw away separately but all get together for a wonderful time over their sandwiches.

When an organization becomes exceedingly perfect, they talk of it as a

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1922.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, July 17.—The appearance of the famed rifle shot, Annie Oakley, in New York, has revived interest in the origin of the term
"Annie Oakley" for the complimentary theatrical ticket. It is a fixed term on the Kallio for the pass.

Edward Smith, perhaps the best posted man in Gotham on underworld argot, declares the term was first employed by grifters with the Buffalo Bill show in which Miss Oakley was playing. The fact that passes are full of holes, "of course," supplies the key.

The circus grifters are the shell and wheel men, flat point and broad workers, shillabroes, stalls and dips and are the most prolific of all the big tent followers in supplying queer slang to the underworld and its fringes.

Still another reason for the term is explained by the fact that when Miss Oakley first appeared at a circus in Madison Square Garden, a number of her pictures, ticket size, were scattered through the streets of the city. Finders were entitled to free admission.

Whatever the reason for the term,
the average New Yorker has the "Annie Oakley" complex. Box-office men are frequently asked to punch holes in tickets by the purchasers. It appears to be a mark of distinction—an indication that the producer or performer is a personal friend.

One of the cut rate theatrical ticket agencies has a card in its tiny office reading: "We will be pleased to exchange your tickets for 'Annie Oakley'
if desired." It has resulted in much business that the exchange would not have otherwise secured.

Now and then the theatrical producers, in a burst of thrift, wage war on the "Annie Oakley" with the stentorian cry, "They shall not pass!"

excluding all but the first night dramatic critics. But it doesn't last. The pass is as much a part of the theater as the impertinent box-office man.

He has written the music for 15 successful musical shows and like the rest of the kings of Tin Pan Alley began his career as a piano player in a Coney Island beer hall in the days when Stanch announced the opening of a fresh keg with the boom of a song. His tunes have been played all over America, England, and France.

Yet he had never been farther away
from New York than Atlantic City until one day last week he journeyed to Chicago. "Do you know," he told a friend, "it is surprising how many people there are outside of New York.
In Chicago the streets were filled with them."

In one street in the Forties east of Fifth avenue, six new sky-scrapers are being erected and the din of the steel trip hammers is not without its result. Two specialists in nervous disorders have opened offices in the section.

Charles F. Murphy is celebrating his twentieth year as chief of Tammany hall. Each year he faces the same old cry, "Murphy must go!" but he continues his reign. I have seen Murphy but once during his leadership. My impression was far from what I expected it to be. He is not the ward-heeler of popular imagination boosted in affluence. Rather does he express an air of culture and refinement. He is the type I would judge from appearances would be iron fisted in public and weep on his wife's shoulder in private.

stitution.)

THE PERISCOPE

Impossible happenings No. 2.
"Look, John. That woman has on a hat just like mine. I wish all women would wear them."

Why should I think so much about it? I probably won't think much of it.

The saddest thing about a republic is that people always get the kind of government they deserve.

Fortunately, however, Uncle Sam won't be importuned to supply the need when Europe runs out of crises.

Another little fault of our civilization is the popular opinion that the roll of honor is a bank roll.

Some men have a chance to succeed,
and some are content to sit and succ
the people who have succeeded.

Men are not interested in window displays of feminine wear. They are merely admiring themselves in the mirrors at the back.

And it may be that state rights are disappearing because too many patriotic hollers for federal troops in time of stress.

We might make war less terrible
by means of an international agreement to let the privates stay back with the generals.

As a means of reconciling one's self to the times, it is pleasant to read history and discover that men always have acted this way.

Edison may ask poker questions,
but he hasn't yet required applicants to make a three-ball combination for the side pocket.

The scars of war are healing. Almost any former buck private can now say "second lieutenant" without prefixing explosive adjectives.

Senate Sidelights

BY HENSON TATUM

Senator Denis Fleming, of the 10th, had under advisement Monday numerous requests reaching his desk by telegram and letter that he enter the race for congress from the second district to succeed Congressman Frank Park.
The senator's home is at Albany,
Dougherty county.

"Early this year I made up my mind to offer for congressman, and said, 'but ill health overtook me and I gave up the idea. Today and for several days past leading citizens in every county of the second district have sent telegrams and letters asking me to make the race. I am in re-bust health again and have about decided to throw my hat into the ring.
I will announce a definite decision within a few days.' The foreman's replying stated he did not know whether Congressman Park intends to run for re-election.

Monday morning Senator L. C.
Brown was telling of the following run-in he overheard at his hotel between two dusky bell boys:

First boy—Nigrah, yuh lib so fer out in de country dat de sun rise twixt yo house and Atlanta."

Second boy—"Dat so? Well, nigrah, yo' black self passes mah house
every day on yo' way to wuk."

Haynes Named Sergeant.
Harry C. Haynes, of Marietta, was appointed Monday by President Clay
as sergeant at arms of the special senate committee named last week to inquire into operation of all state departments.

Senator Pope, of the 44th, introduced a resolution Monday requesting privileges of the floor for George G.
Glenn, former senator from the 43rd.
Senator Pope identified him as "erstwhile editor of the 'Woman's' wife and rainbow and hosiery" act, better known as the "handishment bill," and

RADIO DEPARTMENT

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor: Is it necessary to have a license to make and sell radio sets? If so, where can it be obtained?

H. R. G.: It is not necessary to have a license to make and sell radio apparatus, providing that you do not infringe on design or circuit patents.

Radio Editor: I have a loose coupler set and I have tried it on a friend's aerial and with his phones, and I received signals fine. But with my aerial and phones I do not receive signals at all. Could you please enlighten me? My aerial is made of two wires about 40 feet long, stretched from my house to a corner on my garage roof. The roof is made of tin and the aerial is about 5 feet higher than the roof. Will the tin roof interfere with receiving? My ground wire is fastened to the radiator. Is this satisfactory?

M. M.: Your trouble lies probably in your aerial or ground connection. It would be much better if you could string a single wire from 100 to 150 feet long instead of the two-wire aerial that you now have. The tin on the garage roof will not affect your reception. Try another ground connection, as to a water pipe, as the one that you now have may be at fault.

Radio Editor: Could you please tell me what is the address of station MOM? She came in very QSA. I looked in the call book, but could not find it.

MOM is the call letters of the British steamship, The Norman.

Candy Firm, Resisting Receivership, Declares Ratings Prove Solvency

An answer was filed Monday to a suit filed recently against the Sophie Mae Candy company, by an alleged stockholder, asked to place the corporation in the hands of receivers, set out that the company has a capital stock of $75,000, with surplus and undivided profits of $20,000. The answer also states that the company has no debts, but has assets of $90,000 at a conservative estimate, including $3,500 in cash.

The answer says that the corporation is being conservatively managed, is discounting all its bills and has done so at all times in the past, and that its rating by R. G. Dun & Co. and other reputable commercial rating agencies has steadily increased so that it now has a rating that will compare favorably with any other concern of its size. The answer also alleges that the complaining stockholder holds stock that has never been paid for, and asks that his stock be cancelled. The company is represented by Attorneys Watkins, Russell & Ashill.

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. JAVIS
Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

The ordinary test buzzer employed in radio stations for various purposes consists of two small coils of wire wound upon the two sides of a "U" shaped iron core, across the open end of the core a vibrator is mounted which serves to interrupt the circuit at a frequency dependent on the weight of the vibrator and the tension of the spring which supports it. The current to operate the buzzer is usually supplied by a single dry cell or several dry cells in series. A switch or push button is usually provided for controlling the buzzer.

The test buzzer usually has a very light vibrator so that a high tone similar to the tone of radio signals may be obtained. In commercial receiving sets the test buzzer is often incorporated in the set itself and is usually mounted on the panel with the switches.

The test buzzer as employed for adjusting crystal detectors to maximum sensitiveness operates as a generator of highly damped oscillations. One terminal of the buzzer or battery is connected to the ground of the receiving set or several turns of wire are wrapped around the ground lead and connected to the buzzer circuit. Either of these methods transfer sufficient energy from the buzzer circuit to the detector circuit through the receiving set to give an audible signal in the telephone.

When the test buzzer is used only for adjusting the detector to a condition of sensitiveness as determined by maximum signal in the telephone receivers, the sound caused by the mechanical vibration of the buzzer may be deadened by mounting the device in a small wooden box stuffed with cotton.

For practicing the telegraphic code a buzzer mounted on a wooden base with an ordinary telegraph key is found convenient. If the buzzer does not make sufficient noise an old telephone receiver may be connected across the contacts of the break on the vibrator. A high resistance receiver should be used for this purpose.

A small buzzer similar to the one described above is also convenient in locating faults in a receiving set. For example there may be an open circuit in one of the taps on the switch panel, which can be located by setting the buzzer in operation and rotating the switch arm until the contact is found on which no signal is heard. A telephone receiver may be connected in series with the buzzer contacts and two consecutive switch taps to locate a break in the winding between switch points.

A test buzzer may also be used as a transmitter of radio signals over short distances when employed in connection with the usual antenna system. Under favorable conditions a range of several miles may be attained. It should be understood, however, that a government license is required for every transmitting station and the necessary authority must be obtained from the radio inspector before experimenting with transmitting apparatus.

Divorced From Man She Says Doped Her To Force Marriage

Fifty-two decess were granted Monday morning in Fulton superior court when Judge George L. Bell heard the undivided divorce docket.

Mrs. Bly H. Callaway secured her divorce from W. E. Callaway after she told the jury she had been drugged by Callaway at the railroad station at Birmingham, Ala., in 1919, and then forced into a marriage while in that condition.

The young woman said she was suffering from a headache, when Callaway, then a stranger to her, offered her a white powder which he said would relieve pain, she said she awoke a week later to learn she had become the stranger's wife. She further declared that she had a living husband, but had separated from him and had obtained her first decree of divorce from him at the time she met Callaway. She has since obtained her second decree, she said.

Frank G. Moore, for 25 years a floorwalker in a department store, was granted a first verdict from Elizabeth K. Moore on the grounds of cruel treatment.

A verdict was awarded O. F. McDermott on Annie L. McDermott, on the grounds of cruel treatment. The husband said his wife threatened to poison him.

Details of the program will be announced at a meeting of the committee in the mayor's office at 11:30 Friday.

ALLEGED NEGRO BANDIT IDENTIFIED BY VICTIM

Frank Jones, negro, 87 West Peachtree street, was bound over Monday afternoon to the superior court under a $2,000 bond by Recorder George E. Johnson, on a charge of robbery, following his identification in court by B. H. Mobley, branch manager for the L. W. Rogers Grocery company, and J. A. Whitehurst, clerk in the store, as being the negro who, last December 9, held them up at the point of a pistol, taking $51.98.

Jones was arrested by City Detectives Cason, McGee and King, June 27, at the instance of Mr. Whitehurst, who recognized him on a street car and pointed him out to the officers. He was later identified by Mr. Mobley at the police station, it is claimed, and both swore positively in court yesterday afternoon that he was the man.

Jones was defended by Attorney Ernest C. Buchanan, who enlisted the hearing continuously by clashes with witnesses for the prosecution. Attorney Chauncey Middlebrooks who was conducting the prosecution, and Judge Johnson.

A large number of men and women who have apartments in the building that Jones was janitor for at the time of the alleged robbery, appeared to testify that he had been a hard worker and seemed to be a good janitor. Some of them testified that Jones was working on the furnace at the time the alleged hold-up occurred.

The robbery took place as Manager Mobley and his clerk were preparing to close the store. The negro is said to have fired a shot in the floor of the store as he entered, then covering them with his gun and demanding the money.

Police Chief Beavers says the police will not aid in the crusade started by the junior chamber of commerce to rid the streets of beggars. Speaking Monday of the move by the junior chamber, he said:

"These beggars have permits from the city to solicit alms. Hence, I don't feel that the police should attempt to kick these unfortunates when they are down."

The junior chamber is going ahead with its work, however. The committee will meet Thursday noon to decide upon their next steps. Their contention is that the list of mendicants should be reduced to its minimum and that close watch should be kept to keep beggars off the streets who have no city permits.

Delay Is Granted In Habeas Corpus For Betty Andrews

Hearing on application for writ of habeas corpus seeking the release of Betty Andrews, now in Fulton county, was postponed from Monday morning until Tuesday morning at the request of Walter A. Sims, attorney for the girl.

Attorney Sims said he wished to subpoena additional witnesses. The Andrews girl was ordered re-arrested last week to serve her suspended twelve months' sentence on a statutory charge, following complaint of Hall county officials that she was an "undesirable character." She has been living at her father's home in Hall county since her plea of guilty to the statutory charge shortly after DuPre's trial and conviction.

Says He Whipped Ex-Pug and Could Do It Once More

Boy, page Tex Rickard!

In the morning paper yesterday appeared notice of W. B. Suttles, said to be a prize fighter, being carried to Grady hospital early Sunday morning to have injuries attended to, said injuries having been the result of an informal bout with an employee of a gas filling station on Edgewood avenue.

The story quoted the ex-wielder of the mitts as saying he left a man down at the tilling station in much worse condition than himself.

Boy, if you have not yet paged Tex Rickard, page him now.

A letter was received Monday afternoon from the filling station to the effect that the man down there does not claim to be a prize fighter, has no aspiration for ring glory, and contrary to Suttles' statement, is in the pink of condition. Aside from the fact that the employee did not start the fracas, the filling station company says, in a postscript:

"If Mr. Suttles is a prize fighter, we would like to get Colonel J. Walkington Miller have him box with our employee for a 10-round engagement at Ponce de Leon in the near future."

The Original Goodyear Cushion Tire now equipped with The All-Weather Tread

Several years ago, Goodyear engineers invented and patented the Goodyear Hollow-Center Cushion Tire for motor trucks.

It was made with a soft base and attached to the wheel by side flanges.

This was the first hollow-center cushion truck tire of S. A. E. measurements.

Later this tire was improved by attaching to it a steel base, making it a "pressed-on" tire.

More than 30,000 of these earlier types have been used and have established a unique reputation for resilience and wear.

But these tires were smooth treads.

Now the ultimate development has been effected by combining the virtues of the Hollow-Center Cushion Tire with the advantages of the world-famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread.

The result is the new Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cushion Tire.

Look at its outstanding features:

- 1—It has triple cushioning—due to the patented Goodyear Hollow-Center, the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread, and the new Goodyear Indented Sidewall.
- 2—It has the tractive might of the Goodyear All-Weather Tread.
- 3—It has a special Goodyear pressed-on base.
- 4—It has the wearing strength of Goodyear stock and construction.

The new Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cushion Tire is a true cushion tire, built to meet the special requirements of a particular type of hauling, and it is resilient to the last mile.

It is a logical development of the Goodyear Hollow-Center Cushion Tire, and it is a distinct and important advance on that splendid tire.

You will get from it an unparalleled measure of efficient and low cost performance, distinguished for buoyance, traction and wear.

The new Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cushion Tire is specified as all-round equipment for light and medium duty trucks and for front wheels of heavier units. It is made in all standard sizes from 4 to 7 inches, inclusive.

For other types of hauling, Goodyear makes other special tires. Sold and serviced by your Goodyear Truck Tire Service Station Dealer

MOST EXPERTS SAY BOB McDONALD IS LONGEST DRIVER

Hugh Fullerton Points Out Some Long Wallops During Open Tourney

Opinion Appears to Be Pretty Evenly Divided Between McDonald and Mitchell for Hitting Honors in Golf.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON. Up at Skokie prior to the open golf championship, a stocky little man walked out, snatched one of the longest and most perfect drives of the day off the tee, and smiled. He was Willie Hoare, the only golfer among the more than 300 starters in the open, who played in the first open championship in the Chicago district. Better than that, he still is the driving champion of America. He won the long-driving championship three times in succession more than 15 years ago, received the gold medal, and since no other long-driving championship has been held since then, he retains the title.

He still is among the foremost golfers in the United States, and he can crack them as cleanly and as prettily as he ever could.

MITCHELL OR McDONALD?

Up at Skokie, where the clans gathered from all over the world and the Scotch burr replaced the North Shore accent, the old argument as to who the longest driving golfer is arose again. I strolled around asking the pros I encountered by chance their opinions. Most of the easterners and foreign players said that in their opinion Abe Mitchell is the longest driver. But the majority of the pros and amateurs declared without hesitation that in their opinion Bob McDonald was the greatest driver of them all. A minute or two later McDonald strolled easily up to the tee and smashed a perfect drive, which, with a long, low carry, a slight slice to allow for the wind, struck the hard-baked turf and traveled about 370 yards. Perhaps some one hits them further, but twice during that round overdrive greens that were about 200 yards, one shot being across the wind.

One day during the practice rounds prior to the open, many of the pros were ignoring direction and seemed to be striving to see how far they could make that little pill ride in the wind. The length of their tee shot was tremendous. For instance, on one of the back holes, with a favoring wind, a hard, baked turf, four fellows, among them Jack Hutchinson and Fred Wright, all took their tee shots well beyond three hundred yards.

HOPEFUL BILL VEECK.

Bill Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, is a hopeful sort of a fellow. Bill snorted when he and I discussed the chance of his team this year.

"No second division for us," he said. "We are riding for the top. There is no reason for us to think otherwise, because we have as good a club as any in the league. We're a better club, for instance, than St. Louis. We have a three hundred hit team now, when the cripples are in the world—and don't forget that we'll have several more next season. "That, however, is not the big improvement in the team. We threw away a ball club last year so as to start right. Our theory is that no ball player is any good to his team unless he will get out there and give the best he has to the owners and to the public. It doesn't make any difference how good a player he is, we do not want him unless he will work and earn his money. We treat players right, and expect them to behave if they do not act right. This club is going to be one just like the old Cubs before very long."

"If the players have as much confidence as the president has, the team certainly will get somewhere. "Killefer is making good as a manager. He has developed into a good disciplinarian, and he can make them behave if they do not act right. This club is going to be one just like the old Cubs before very long."

Journal Will Meet Lawmakers After Defeating The Constitution 17 to 10

Stars of Game Too Numerous to Mention. Mike Thomas and John J. Dubb Coupled.

BY BOB WILLIAMSON. The Constitution takes this opportunity to announce to the general as well as the sporting public that the championship baseball tag today floats triumphantly over the offices of The Atlanta Journal. But the flag was annexed only after a hectic embroglio in which the valiant aggregation from this standard southern newspaper went down to defeat by the unexpected score of 17 to 10.

But while hits were numerous, there was another most important item which must be noted in the final reckoning, to-wit, errors. There were errors galore, committed in truly de luxe fashion. Honors in this department must, in justice to all those sweating participants, be divided. William Chenault, Munday, Jr., made highly notorious and widely known by his recent defeat of The Atlanta Georgian, took the mound for the Journal. He remained until the end of the game, although it wasn't his fault. Rumors were afloat about Grant field that he was the only pitcher to have pitched for the Constitution, working hard. But Mr. Bryant seemed to have a positive aversion to fielding the ball, disdaining to handle without miffing a one of the dozen or more chances he had. But he probably reasoned that the sun was hot, the party was small and any man who was a pitcher, not a fielder, Mr. Bryant's errors, however, didn't lose the ball game.

Steve Hits 'Em Hard.

Paul Stevenson, that demon old-time, capital reporter and woolly first sacker for The Constitution, was not found wanting when he nonchalantly picked up the weeping willow, strode to the rubber with a supercilious smile at the perspiring Bill Munday, Jr., and out of five times at bat, nicked out three singles, a magnificent two-bagger (which, for a younger man than Paul, would have been good for four or five sacks), and the other time a high fly that bore earmarks of a homer had not the fast-stepping Journal outfielder proceeded to scoop it in out of mid-air.

But Paul checked up short after the seventh inning. His figure was no longer seen gracing the initial baz,

Britons Out Of Cup Matches

New York, July 17.—Official confirmation has been received by the United States Lawn Tennis association of Great Britain's decision to default to Spain in the semi-final round of the Davis cup tournament, owing to the inability of the British players to obtain leaves of absence.

"Regret unable to secure representative team for America," the message said, "British Isles scratch to Spain as present intention of latter is to compete in final."

Last week the British association requested that the Hispano-British match, which was to be played in this country, be postponed one week, until August 24, 25 and 26, as Randolph and Major A. R. F. Kingcoote, the British stars, could not be absent more than a month. Since then the British players apparently have found that even this arrangement could not be made.

The Franco-Australian match is to be played at the Longwood Cricket club in Boston on August 10, 11 and 12. The winner will meet the Spanish team at the Germantown Cricket club in Philadelphia, on August 17, 18 and 19.

Spain qualified for the semi-final by defeating India last week and Great Britain defeated Italy.

Selections Soon.

The Davis cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association will probably make known within a short time the selections for the American team to defend the Davis cup. Vincent Richards, ranked third this year, is a strong candidate for a place, but he has suffered some depreciation because of his defeat by William T. Tilden in the Rhode Island state championship tournament last week. Last year's team consisted of Tilden, William M. Johnston, of California; Watson M. Washburn, of New York; and R. Norris Williams, of Boston. Tilden and Johnston are about certain to be on this year's team, but the other two must be selected from Williams, Washburn and the youthful Richards.

BABE HITS FIFTEENTH

New York, July 17.—Babe Ruth hit his seventh home run of the season in the seventh inning of the Yankee-White Sox game today. He is now one behind Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, and six behind Clarence W. Williams, of Philadelphia, and Kenneth Williams, who are tied for first place with 21. On July 15 last year Ruth's total was 35.

MEETS RED HERRING TONIGHT AT PONCEY

Fearless Ferns, local 138-pounder, who will meet Red Herring, of Memphis, in the 10-round main bout on the American Legion bout at Ponce de Leon baseball park tonight. Mike Murphy and Battling Kelly, of Birmingham, will fight 10 rounds on the same card and Pal Flournoy, Sailor Vinson, Young Claude Wilson and Young Bob Martin will meet in the other bouts.

It costs the city of New York two and a half times more than Chicago to run its public schools.

Studebaker

CLOSED CARS

Studebaker enclosed cars are an evolution of the fine coach work of former generations. They represent the skill of engineering specialists, plus the standard of 70 years experience in building quality vehicles. Strength, weight, resistance to shock, freedom from rattles, are all subjected to searching analysis and grueling road tests under every possible condition of road and weather. The body framework is of selected white ash—thoroughly seasoned and rigidly inspected. Painting is comparable to the highest grade custom coach work. It includes 26 different operations and 15 separate coats of material.

The seat springs are of the highest grade. The upholstery is of mohair velvet plush velour, selected for wearing qualities and rich neutral tones which combine elegance with service. Door-window regulators of the latest improved type permit quick change from weatherproof protection to an airy open body.

Studebaker enclosed bodies are as good as the chassis. They are built to endure.

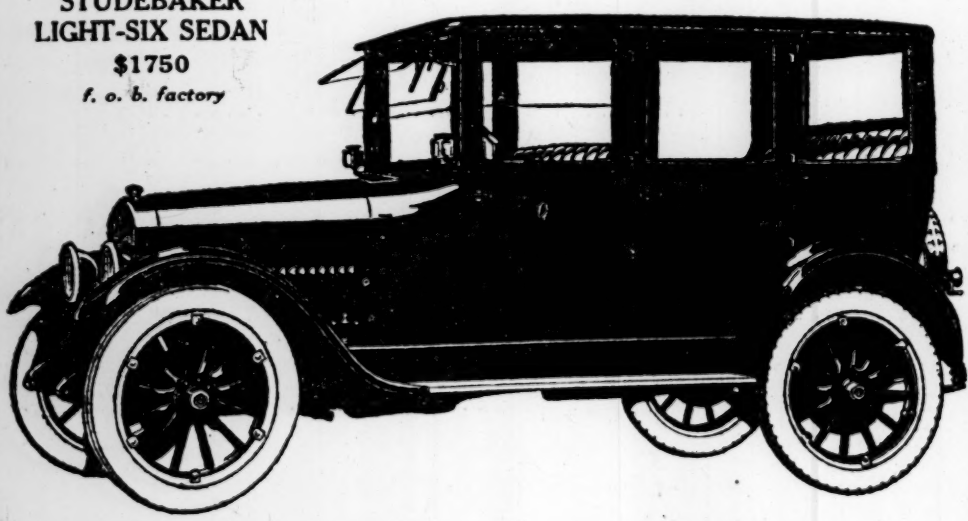

Ask for the Studebaker "Yardstick" a measure of the greater value that Studebaker offers.

Daniel Webster's Hat

ONE of Daniel Webster's famous retorts was to a young man when their hats got mixed.

"Why, Mr. Webster," said he, "our heads are just the same size."

"On the outside, perhaps," replied Webster.

If there had been 10,000,000 automobiles in Webster's day this might have hit off the feeling about tires as well.

To understand the tire situation today, go back to 1918, 1919 and 1920, when tire makers were jumping to catch up with the demand. In 1921 they more than caught up.

And in 1922, every car-owner knows where he can get plenty of tires with plenty of big discounts. Plenty of bargains with ingenious sales arguments.

A vast quantity of merchandise he knows little or nothing about.

The quantity problem is history.

It is all this quantity of tires—and their wide variance in value that is making most car-owners determined to get quality.

Hundreds of thousands of car-owners rode on Royal Cords last year.

The unobserving man might say that this was reaching the limit of the quality idea.

Yet, in January, February, March, April and May, 1922, the sales of U. S. Royal Cords through dealers more than doubled over the same period of 1921. A new high record for Royal Cords.

Spontaneous buying through dealers.

A picture of the public voluntarily making U. S. Royal Cords the measure of all automobile tires.

You have, perhaps, overheard some other tire being sold for "as good as a Royal."

At a time like this remember what Daniel Webster said.

FERNS ON LEGIONAR NIGHT, PONCEY PARK

Vanderbilt to Pick Grid Team From 23 Candidates

Ferns Meets 'Red' Herring

In Main Bout; Battling Kelly And Claude Wilson on Card

Main Battle Promises Action That the Local Fans Crave—Both Men Have Good Records as Clouters.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

Two hard-hitting young welterweights, one sporting the silks of Memphis, the other proud to tell the world that he is an Atlanta product, are the headliners tonight at the ball park on the American Legion's night card.

"Red" Herring is the Buick City lad and Ferns is the community's representative in this battle of welter and that it will give the customers all they are looking for in the way of swatting is conceded by persons having even a small knowledge of southern pugilistic affairs.

Training was finished yesterday. Ferns, after a brief sparring session in the morning, spent the afternoon as assistant caddy for his manager, Walk Miller, incidentally promoter of the events tonight, who was busy engaged in furnishing a good record for some opponent, the battle taking place over the Piedmont municipal court.

Herring was quite so interested in golf, spending his time mostly in the gymnasium on Marietta street. He looked to be in perfect trim and hinted to this reporter that he had something new in the way of a punch and advised him to watch closely the technique used in delivering it to Ferns' button.

Thus far we haven't been informed of any startling addition to the Fearless one's list of repertoire, but come to think of it, if one of the punches Ferns is in the habit of employing reaches the right spot, "Red" Herring is going to drop. Ferns doesn't need anything new.

As we have said before, Fearless Ferns is one of the types of fighter that thinks all the time that he is in the ring, and before he goes in. The fact that he does this little thing is one of the reasons why that something unusual is likely to happen. Ferns has been studying the style of "Red" Herring in all of his appearances where Ferns was in position to see him battle, and in Herring's previous appearance locally Ferns not only watched his antics in the ring, but he picked up some valuable tips from Larry Aver, his opponent on this occasion.

FERNS IS A REAL FIGHTER IN THE RING.

Ferns in his last appearance locally met one of the fighters that is appearing on the card tonight. This battle was between Kelly, of Birmingham, and Ferns, on this occasion, would have whipped the welter-weight Kelly, and he started into Kelly from the top of the ring and was never a minute that he was not flaming and pumping punches into the midsection of his opponent on this occasion.

Kelly subsided into the resin about the time that the fight was over, and Kelly is anything but the type of a fighter that would go down on this occasion.

CRACKERS FAIL TO ARRIVE

Little Rock, Ark., July 17.—(Special.)—The Atlanta Crackers missed train connections in Memphis today and there wasn't any ball game at Kavanauk field in the afternoon, consequently there will be two games tomorrow, afternoon play starting at 2:15 p. m.

The Crackers sent word over here early this afternoon that they were five hours late getting to Memphis, and the train they should have taken for Little Rock left the Chicks' home town before the Crackers arrived.

Maybe it was just as well that the Crackers didn't get here because the weather man was in a grouchy mood, and had the field pretty wet by playing time and it ruined most of the afternoon. It probably would have been necessary to call off the game on account of rain if the Crackers had arrived.

Southpaw Attack.

Kid Elbert, probably will use his three southpaw pitchers in the three games, with the Crackers. He plans to pitch Crevogros and Robinson tomorrow, and Warman Wednesday in the final game of the series.

Frankie Zoellers will be in the game tomorrow, which will put the Crackers in a pretty tight spot, the first time in many games. The return of Zoellers will make Lapan available for catching duty and he and Brown probably will have been necessary to call off the game on account of rain if the Crackers had arrived.

The Kid will shift his line-up slightly. In today when Zoellers returns and later, will be dropped down in the batting order.

The ex-Cracker has been doing the lead-off for the Travelers while Zoellers was out.

LEW TENDLER AFTER KAYO

New York, July 17.—Benny Leonard hasn't had anything to say about the matter, but the absolutely confident manner in which Lew Tandler threatens to knock him stone cold in their lightweight championship fight a week from Thursday, gives his rival an extraordinary psychological angle.

The fighters who try for Leonard's title, generally have only modest statements to make before being thrown in against the lightweight master. But Tandler, one of the strongest hitters that ever fought at his weight, and a passable boxer even though a left-hander, has been telling Philadelphia, which is his home, that he will give Benny a lightening bolt in the chest and make him insensible.

All this has been replied to Leonard who certainly is not at his peak any more. He is not accustomed to meeting fighters who respect whatever for his punch and cleverness so far he has not replied to Tandler.

Tandler is doing considerable boxing with Harry (Kid) Brown and Joe Tipit in the camp at Delano, N. J., near Philadelphia; Jim Droney, of Lancaster, Pa., a lightweight, joins the camp in a day or two. Leonard is catching fish at Budd Lake, N. J., and while away his evenings playing the phonograph on which he is an accomplished artist, though he never in Alaska, with 3,500 pupils.

There are 71 native public schools in Alaska, with 3,500 pupils.

Plans for Tourney.

Plans for the junior chamber of commerce golf tournament are nearing completion. The tournament is open to members of the junior chamber. It is hoped that the success of the recent tournament will attract the swiftness of the slender club. The tournament will last one day. Medals will be awarded the winners. The date of the tournament has not yet been decided on, but it will be announced in a few days.

There are 71 native public schools in Alaska, with 3,500 pupils.

Cubs Bunt Out Win.

Chicago, July 17.—Chicago bunted Pitcher Lee Meadows off his feet in the eighth inning and Philadelphia lost its first game of the season in this city 3 to 2. Krug started with a single in the eighth. O'Farrell bunted, and Krug beat the throw to second. Jones also bunted to Meadows, who threw wild to Rapp and Krug and O'Farrell scored. Friberg then walked and Hollocher sacrificed. Terry walked and after Miller fanned, Heathcote singled sending Jones home with the winning run.

Giants Win 3-2.

St. Louis, July 17.—St. Louis' defeat of New York 3 to 2 in the third game of the series today put the champions 11-2 games ahead in the league race and prevented the possibility of the Cardinals taking the lead in the present four-game series.

Masterful pitching by Toney, who kept the 8 hits allowed the Cards well scattered, featured the game. McCurdy pitched for the Giants, but was held out because of his inability to hold back.

THEATERS

Loew's Grand Theatre—(Vaudeville and pictures.) See advertising for program.

Forsyth Theatre—All week: Forsyth Players in "Daddies."

Howard Theatre—All week: Thomas Meighan in "Our Leading Citizen," and other screen features.

Loew Vaudeville.

(At the Grand)

A bill of many entertaining features opened the week at Loew's Grand Theatre on Monday. Five excellent acts are provided, the motion picture program also being one of unusual interest. The most popular of the vaudeville act seems to be that of Joe Roberts "March of the Banjo." Monday nights audience called this splendid artist back time and time again, seeming to thoroughly enjoy his music which well-played selections ranging from grand opera to popular jazz tunes.

Ed and Mack Williams open the bill with eccentric, novelty and specialty dancing. The boys' act accomplished and were given a liberal hand. Then follows Jim and Julia Chittis in bits from musical shows. Their numbers are well sung and with a sprinkling of comedy, is one of the hits of the show.

A comedy playlet sparkling with bright lines and clever dialogue is offered by J. J. and J. J. & Company. It is called "Stingy" and presents Mr. McCurdy in an amusing character. Closing the entertainment is Todeca and Todeca, in novel and sensational cycling feat.

The feature of the screen bill is William Farnum, in "Shackles of Gold."

"Our Leading Citizen."

(At the Howard)

Alfred Green, who directed Mr. Meighan in "The Bachelor Daddy," and Mary Pickford in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," not to speak of other notable screen productions, directed "Our Leading Citizen" with admirable results. Mr. Green not only knows the technique of his art, but has a profound appreciation of dramatic values as expressed on the silver sheet. His experience is wide and he gains effects so quietly that those working with him hardly appreciate the skill he displays. In "Our Leading Citizen," he has created a splendid picture—one that seems destined to become a classic of the American screen.

"One Clear Call."

(At the Metropolitan)

Another genuinely good program opens the week at the Metropolitan. The feature attraction is "One Clear Call," a picture in which drama trends close to melodrama, mystery hovers near tragedy and pathos mingles with flashes of romance. Henry B. Walthall, remembered by millions for his matchless delineation of "The Little Colonel," has the featured role of Henry Garnett in "One Clear Call," and plays with convincing realism. Claire Windsor is lovely and thoroughly appealing as the woman of mystery—in reality the almost heart-broken wife of Henry Garnett. Milton is entrusted with the heroic part and he acquires himself with immense credit. Joseph J. Dowling and

"Beauty's Worth."

(At the Rialto)

More sprightly than in "Enchantment," more entrancingly beautiful than in "The Bride's Play," is Marion Davies in her newest picture, "Beauty's Worth," which delighted last night's audiences at the Rialto theatre, directed by Robert G. Vignola.

"Beauty's Worth" delightfully pictures the transition of a quiet and shy little Quakeress into a gorgeously gowned and much sought-after society belle. Miss Davies, in the role of the Quakeress, proves that she can be as lovely in severe and unattractive garb as in the latest creations of Paris and New York.

Charmy Rowell (Forest Stanley), who discards in the girl a rare beauty to which others, and especially the young girl whom she loves, have been blind. He assembles the guests at a fashionable hotel by presenting Prudence in a charade performance that is as artistic an exotic as anything ever seen on stage or screen.

Besides Mr. Stanley, those who support the star are June Elvidge, Truly Shattuck, Lydia Yamans Titus, Hallam Cooley, Antrim Short, Thomas Jefferson, Martha Maddox, Allen Manning and Gordon Dooly. A cast that is about as fine as could be assembled. The story was written by Sophie Kerr and Luther Reed did the scenario.

International News and the new Rialto orchestra fill out the program.

"Domestic Relations."

(At the Criterion)

An extraordinary photograph, because it is so true to everyday life, is Katherine MacDonald's newest production, "Domestic Relations," a First National attraction which began an extended run at the Criterion theatre Monday. "Domestic Relations" is from the pen of Violet Clarke and was directed by Chester Withey, boy who can be proud of the effect they have achieved.

Its extreme fidelity to the lives of most married couples will make its appeal world-wide. It depicts in a vivid manner the little differences of most married couples, and every couple a short time after the honeymoon is over, and which are the danger rocks of the marital state.

Forsyth Players Please

Crowd With Good Comedy

The Forsyth Players returned to the wholesomeness of comedy Monday night when they presented "Daddies," the Belasco success of a pair of seasons ago. Incidentally the play furnished the finest opportunity for the players to display the full strength of the male members of their force.

The story revolves about five men, sworn to bachelorhood, finally converted to matrimony through the adoption of war orphans. Each of the five bachelors furnishes opportunity for fine character portrayal and each character is of about equal importance.

And Monday night it was difficult to differentiate between the work of any of the quintet, composed of John B. Little, Romaine Callender, Robert Craig, A. S. Byron, and Franklin Munnell. Their work was spirited, genial, wholesome, and faithful. The actors seemed to enjoy the work. Certainly the audience did.

After the first few minutes of the first act, the laughter was practically uninterrupted throughout the four acts of the play.

Where in all Atlanta did they find such a company of child actors. Little Silvia Miles won the Forsyth audience from the minute she tripped out in her little black tam—suppose it was a tam. Then Annie Lou Whitaker and the Ullrich children and Barbara Cohen—every one was delightful because thoroughly natural.

Miss Gombell again gave a fine characterization. It was quite a emotional role at times, but her touch was deft. Miss Alice Baker gave another one of her perfect mother roles. Miss Mary Terry was herself again, and Miss Kathryn Givney had a short part which was flawlessly done.

"Daddies" took the Monday night audience right over the footlights and everybody laughed. Ideal hot weather entertainment. And quite a finished production.

Gigantic Liquor Plot Uncovered

In Chicago City

BY RODNEY DUTCHER.

United News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, July 17.—A special federal grand jury here Monday heard details of what federal officials declare is the most gigantic whiskey plot revealed since it first became necessary to plot to get whisky.

The jury was called to hear evidence against Harry W. Mager, former collector of internal revenue here, and Benjamin Mitchell, a former member of the Illinois legislature, who are charged with doing very well for themselves in turning the eighteenth amendment into a source of personal revenue in dollars.

Later, several prominent citizens, others newly rich but not so prominent, a few police officers, minor federal officials, chain drug store proprietors and some of the city's best beloved bootleggers will also be the subjects of hearings, according to Colonel E. A. Earnshaw, chief of the revenue bureau's special intelligence unit.

Before he gets through, Earnshaw claims, the grand jury will have investigated the changing hands of $2,000,000 more in connection with the big combination of bootleggers and grafting officials and citizens.

One piece of evidence against Mager and Mitchell, it was announced, consists of affidavits signed by four Morton Grove saloon-keepers to the effect that they each paid $1,000 to the two accused men for the suppression of evidence against them after their barrooms had been raided. Mager and Mitchell, it is alleged, collected about $300,000.

The Morton Grove incident, however, amounted to nothing at all. Earnshaw says, compared with the instance of a brewery now under investigation in which the members of the "ring" made most of their money by the imposition and collection of informal taxes on real beer produced in state breweries and shipped to eager consumers, it is charged.

A wealthy downstate brewer, it was learned, has been promised immunity if he will "tell all." On all beer containing more than the Volstead limit, he told the authorities, the "ring" had collected a tax of $5 on every barrel before it could get out of town.

Arrests Expected.

Arrests of the "prominent citizens" are expected soon, as government authorities said they would make the arrests during the week so the men involved would be under bonds when indicted.

One of these men, it was reported reliably, is the head of a large steel foundry, who, when the steel business was dull, went to work for the ring and cleaned up $200,000 by just dropping around and visiting drug stores which had lost the privilege of selling whisky through previous abuse of it. While the steel man was working the ring's drug store concession, others were assigned to the barrooms, the cabarets and casinos, the hotels, the hot-dog stands, the delicatessen stores, the key clubs and the Gordon gin label factories, according to Earnshaw and his associates.

But meanwhile Illinois had about all it wanted to drink.

So much evidence has been obtained that it will be at least a month before the grand jury will be able to hear it all.

Cotton Letters.

New York, July 17.—(Special.)—Our market opened under a close account of weaker Liverpool cables and better crop reports from the belt. Business was very quiet, the normal, steady movement in the afternoon New Orleans and local cash freely, putting October under the 22-cent level. The general feeling here remains bullish on the total output of the crop, but at the moment is most anxious to see an easier market in consequence of the more favorable reports that are reaching us regarding the crop.

The market opened 15 to 20 points under Saturday's closing, due to the weakness in the Liverpool market and the generally favorable weather over the week. The cotton market was very quiet, with prices pivoting within narrow limits. The afternoon session developed a considerable weakness, with a decline of 15 to 20 points in final quotations being 21.08 for Middling.

There was a tendency to decline until fresh bullish news reaches us—Hullbrook Bros. & Co.

Baldwin and American Can Make New High Records

Ford Sales in June Break All Previous High Totals in World

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, July 17.—Baldwin and American Can made new high records for the year today with Pullman, Crucible, American Can and Foundry, International Harvester and other stocks strong. Oils were again weak. But the feeling in the best posted quarters here is that the very people who are extremely bearish on the oil shares are accumulating stocks elsewhere. Coppers and rails also were strong.

In connection with the advance in International Harvester one of the biggest bankers here said that three weeks ago he was in Omaha and other parts of Nebraska, and that there was then much need of rain, but that since that time there had been nine inches of moisture, with everybody pleased at the prospects for corn and other crops. His Nebraska banking and business friends report by letter that with the crop outlook what it is the west has every reason to feel encouraged.

A shipment of $2,500,000 gold has arrived here from London for J. P. Morgan & Co. This is the fourth shipment of the same size within the past fortnight from England. The belief is that this gold is for payment of interest this autumn on England's war debt to our government.

Endicott-Johnson reports for the six months of 1922 net profits after the preferred dividends equal to $55 a share on the common stock. For the same period of last year $4.25 was earned for the common stock.

Lower Water Rates. Up until July 1 the freight rates to the Pacific coast were the same as rail and water rates. Now owing to the better rate was going on between coastwise steamships, water rates are much lower. Rubber tires, for example, can be shipped from Akron to New York by rail and then to San Francisco by water for $2.00, as against the all-rail rate of $1.50. Ford sold during June 148,439 cars, trucks and tractors. These retail sales made a new record for any month. The daily average for the month was 5,700. For the first half of 1922 sales were 652,201, a new high record for any six months.

Sales Increase. Copper sales for June were over 170,000,000 pounds, against 150,000,000 for May and 125,000,000 the average for the first quarter of 1922. J. P. Morgan & Co. announced today that June copper shipments were the largest on record for any peace time month. He also stated that the supply of scrap copper per the world over had been exhausted. Baltimore and Ohio has ordered from Baldwin 35 big locomotives, to cost approximately $2,000,000. This is the largest single order Baldwin has received in many months. American Woolen at today's advanced prices approximately 3 per cent over those for the spring of 1922. Compared with this year's fall prices there is a reduction of approximately 5 per cent.

Wall street is being flooded with bullishness on the Mexican oil situation, and the stock interest in Mexican Petroleum and other Mexican oil shares has been greatly increased. Today's market told of a 200-barrel a day well that only started last Tuesday, shooting already 25 per cent salt water. Puts and calls on Mexican Petroleum can only be had 25 points each away from the market.

One large house here in Wall Street goes on record with the statement that "no man can afford to trade in Mexican oil shares without the aid of a geologist familiar with that territory." What would be infinitely more profitable than the services of a geologist would be information that would really show what the insiders in Mexican Petroleum were doing stock market-wise. Anything worth a cent of Mexican Petroleum on the salt water stories now being circulated should have a guardian appointed. The stock is cornered, and the only reason can be put any day at any price.

Cuts Announced. Magnolia Petroleum and Texas company both announced a cut of 10 cents a barrel in crude oil today following the lead last Saturday of Standard Oil of California, and most of the big mid-continent producers, and a 20-cent cut was also announced for Pennsylvania crude.

With crude oil production still increasing, with the senate in possession of the recent federal trade commission report that the Standard Oil companies were maintaining an illegal combination in restraint of trade, with the senate now investigating the recent selling price increase in crude and refined oil and with the big producers now cutting crude oil prices, Wall Street naturally is looking for unsettlement in the oil stocks.

Increased Efficiency. While the trend of wages is again upward, industry in general reports a decided increase in the efficiency of labor as a result of the recent unemployment and wage reductions. Today Detroit reports that with 11 per cent fewer men than in the 1920 boom automobile manufacturers are turning out from 10 to 6 per cent more cars.

Today's Youngstown Dispatch says that Republic Steel has been forced to shut down two or three of its blast furnaces owing to fuel shortage and that similar action will be taken by other steel mills in that district unless there is immediate relief in the fuel situation. Due to congestion caused by the railway shipmen's strike, production of soft coal for the week ending July 6 was 4,300,000 tons, the geological survey at Washington estimates today, also revealing its figures for last week which were 4,200,000 tons.

Hardly had the door closed behind him, than it opened again and Brent also disappeared in the storm. In a little while the river bank, an Indian grunted sleepily in answer to an insistent banging upon his door.

"Joe Pete, come out here!"

A candle-flared dully, and presently the door opened and a huge Indian stood in the doorway rubbing his eyes with his fist. "Come in here," ordered Brent, "to the cabin."

Silently the Indian slipped into his outer clothing and followed, and without a word of explanation, Brent led the way to his cabin. For a half hour they sat in silence, during which Brent several times drank from his bottle. Presently Reeves entered and laid a pouch upon the table.

"Joe Pete, this is Mr. Reeves. Reeves, this is Joe Pete, the best damned Indian in Alaska, or anywhere else. Used to pack over the Chilkoot trail."

"He made a lot of money for me," Brent said, "but now he's broke. Joe Pete is going with me. He and I understand each other perfectly." He picked up the sack and handed it to the Indian: "Two thousand dollars—pilchikimin. Go to police, find out trail to Mackenzie—Fort Norman. How many miles? How many days? Buy grub for two. Buy good dogs and sled. Buy two outfits clothes—plenty talbac. Keep rest of pilchikimin safe until two days on trail, then give it to me. We hit the trail at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Without a word the Indian took the sack and slipped silently out the door, while Reeves stared in astonishment.

At 7 o'clock in the morning Reeves hurried to Brent's cabin. Brent greeted him with drunken enthusiasm: "Hello, Reeves, old top! Glad to see you. S'down an' have a good drink!"

"But, man, you're not ready. There's nothing packed. And you're as drunk as a lord!"

"Sure, I'm drunk—a lord—drunk—er'n two lords—lords ain't so damn drunk. If I don't get packed by 8 o'clock I'll have to go without pack."

You don't know Joe Pete. At a quarter of eight there was a commotion before the door and the huge Indian entered the room, dressed for the trail. He stood still, gave a comprehensive look around the room, and silently fell to work. He examined rapidly everything in the cabin, throwing several articles into a pile. Brent's tooth brush, comb, shaving outfit and mirror he made into a pack which he carried to the sled, returning a moment later with a brand-new outfit of clothing. He placed it upon the chair and motioned Brent to get into it. But Brent stood and stared at it obviously. Whereupon, without a word, the Indian seized him and with one or two jerks stripped him to the skin and proceeded to dress him as one would dress a baby. Brent protested weakly, but all to no purpose. Reeves helped, and soon Brent was clothed for the winter trail. The Indian consulted a huge silver watch, and returning to his pocket, sat upon the edge of the bunk and stared at the wall. Brent pattered futilely about the room, and addressed the Indian, "We got to get a bottle of hooch. I got to have just one more drink. Just one more drink, an' then to hell with it!"

The Indian said not the slightest word, but continued to stare at the wall. A few minutes later he again consulted his watch, and rising, grasped Brent about the middle and carried him, struggling and protesting, out the door and lashed him securely to the sled. Reeves watched the proceeding in amazement, and almost before he realized what was happening, the Indian had taken his place beside the dogs. He cracked his whip, shouted an unintelligible command, and the dogs started. Upon the top of the sled, Brent wagged a feeble farewell to Reeves: "Sho long, old man—the you later—I got to go now. You don't know Joe Pete."

CHAPTER V.

At noon Joe Pete swung the outfit into the lee of a thick, built a fire, and brewed tea. Brent woke up and the Indian loosened the halchie line that had secured him. Brent staggered and stumbled about in the snow in an effort to restore circulation to his numb arms and legs. Joe Pete tendered him a cup of steaming tea. Brent smelled of the liquid with disgust: "To hell with tea!" he growled thickly. "I want hooch."

"Hooch no good. Tea good. Ain' got no hooch—not want drink."

"No hooch," cried Brent, "how far have we come?"

"Bout fifteen mile."

"Well, just as soon as you finish eating you turn that dog team around. We're going back."

Joe Pete finished his meal and returned the cooking outfit to its appointed place on the load. "You goin' ride?" he asked.

"No, I'll walk. Got to walk or I'll freeze."

The Indian produced from the pack a pair of snowshoes and helped Brent to fasten them on. Then he swung the dogs onto the trail and continued on his course. "Here you!" cried Brent, "pull those dogs around! We're going back to Dawson!"

Joe Pete halted the dogs and walked back to where Brent stood beside the dog sled. "Mebbeso we goin' back to Dawson," he said, "but, first, we goin' get some grub. You tak' hold tail-rope, an' mush."

A great surge of anger swept Brent. He took a step forward and raised his arm as though to strike the Indian. "What do you mean? Damn you! Who is running this outfit? I've changed my mind. I'm not going to Fort Norman."

Joe Pete did not even step back from the unlifted arm. "You ain't change my min' none. You drunk, I ain' hear you talk. Me-by-hye, you git sober, Joe Pete, hear you talk. You grab tail-rope now or I tie you oop again."

The Indian pointed to the tail-rope, and, muttering curses, Brent reached down and picked it up, and the outfit started.

So far they had fairly good going. Joe Pete traveled ahead, leading the dogs, and before they had gone a mile Brent stumbled and fell, dragged for a moment, and let go. Then Joe Pete bound him upon the sled. At dark they camped. Brent sitting humped up beside the fire while Joe Pete set up the little tent and cooked supper.

Brent drank. Brent drank. Brent drank. Again he begged in vain for hooch—and was offered pilot bread and moose meat. That night Brent, sleepless and half-delirious, suffered the tortures of the damned. In the morning, babbling for whisky, he drank tea. And at the noon camp he drank more strong tea and ate a little pilot bread and a small piece of moose meat. He walked about five miles in the afternoon before he was again tied on the sled, and that night he helped Joe Pete set up the tent. For supper he drank a quart of strong bitter tea, and ate more bread and meat, and at night, after tossing restlessly till midnight, he fell asleep. The third day he ate some breakfast, and did two stretches on snowshoes during the day that totaled 10 or 15 miles, and that night he devoured a hearty meal and slept the sleep of the weary. The rejuvenation of Brent was rapid from then on.

Down on the Gravel river, with the Mackenzie only three or four days away, the outfit rounded a bend one evening and came suddenly upon a camp. As they headed in for it they were greeted by a rabble of barking snarling dogs, which dispersed yeiping as a man stepped into their midst, laying right and left about him with a long-lashed whip. The man was Johnnie Claw.

"Hello, Claw," said Brent, "what have you got a load of hooch for the Indians?"

The man stepped close and stared for a moment into Brent's face. Then, suddenly, he stepped back: "Well, damn my soul, if it ain't you!"

Brent had heard of Claw's long journeys to the eastward—men said he was the best trader in the Arctic where he carried on nefarious barter with the whalers, trading Indian and Eskimo women for hooch, which he in turn traded to the Indians.

"What are you doing over here?" Brent asked.

Claw laughed: "I hain't afraid to tell you what I do over here. I'm peddling hooch—that's what I'm doin'. Got two sled-loads along that I bring through from Dawson. I thim it out with water an' it'll last till I git to the coast—clean over on Coronation gulf, an' then I lay in a fresh batch from the whalers an' hit back for Dawson. So long—shake, to show they's no hard feelin's—or, better yet, have a drink."

He drew a bottle from his pocket and thrust it toward Brent so abruptly that some of the liquor spilled upon Brent's bare hand. The odor of it reached his nostrils, and for a second Brent closed his hand and sniffed. "Guess one won't hurt any," he said, and raising the bottle to his lips, drank deeply.

Instantly the liquor enveloped Brent in its warm glow. A moment later he paid Claw two ounces "guess weight" out of the buckskin pouch, in return for a bottle that Claw produced from another pocket.

It was mid-afternoon when Brent drank the last of the liquor and threw the bottle into the snow. He was very drunk, and with the most gravity, halted the outfit and commanded the Indian to turn the dogs and strike out on the trail of Claw. But Joe Pete merely shrugged, and started.

When he had proceeded a hundred yards the Indian halted the dogs, and strode swiftly after Brent, who was making poor going of it on his snowshoes. It was but the work of a few moments for the big Indian to throw him down, tie his hands and feet and carry him, struggling and cursing, back to the sled, here he rode for the remainder of the day in a most uncomfortable position. The following morning Brent awoke long before daylight. His head ached fiercely and in his mouth was the bitter aftermath of dead liquor. In vain he sought sleep, but sleep would not come. Remorse and shame gripped him as he had never gripped him before. When Joe Pete stepped from the tent in the grey of the morning it was to find breakfast ready, and Brent busy harnessing the dogs. In silence the meal was eaten, and in silence the two hit the trail.

After replenishing their supplies at Fort Norman they reached the Coppermine river. A permanent campsite was selected upon the west bank and the two worked with a will in constructing a tiny log cabin, well within the shelter of a thick clump of spruce.

While Joe Pete worked at building of a cache, Brent hunted caribou. Upon one of these excursions, while following up the river some three or four miles south of the cabin, he came suddenly upon an encampment. Three tiny log cabins and a half-dozen teepees were visible in the great expanse of scrubby spruce. An Indian paused in the act of hacking firewood and regarded him stolidly. Brent ascended the bank and greeted him in English. Receiving no response, he tried the jargon. The Indian glanced sideways, toward one of the cabins and muttered something in guttural. Then the door of the cabin opened and a girl stepped out and closed the door behind her. Brent stared speechless, as his swift glance took in the details of her masculine dress—leggings, short skirt, white capote and stocking cap. She held a high-power rifle in her mittened hand. Then their eyes met, and the man felt his heart give a bound beneath his tight-buttoned mackinaw. Instantly, he realized that he was staring rudely, and as the blood mounted to his cheeks, he snatched the cap from his head and stepped forward with hasty apology: "I beg your pardon," he stammered. "You see, I had no idea you were here—I mean, I had not expected to find a lady in the middle of this God-forsaken wilderness. And especially as I only expected to find Indians—and I hadn't even expected them."

"I am an Indian," announced the girl laughingly. "And now you have found us—go!"

"An Indian!" cried Brent. "Surely you are—"

"Go!" repeated the girl, "before I kill you!"

"Oh, come, now," smiled Brent. "You wouldn't do that. We are neighbors, why not be friends?"

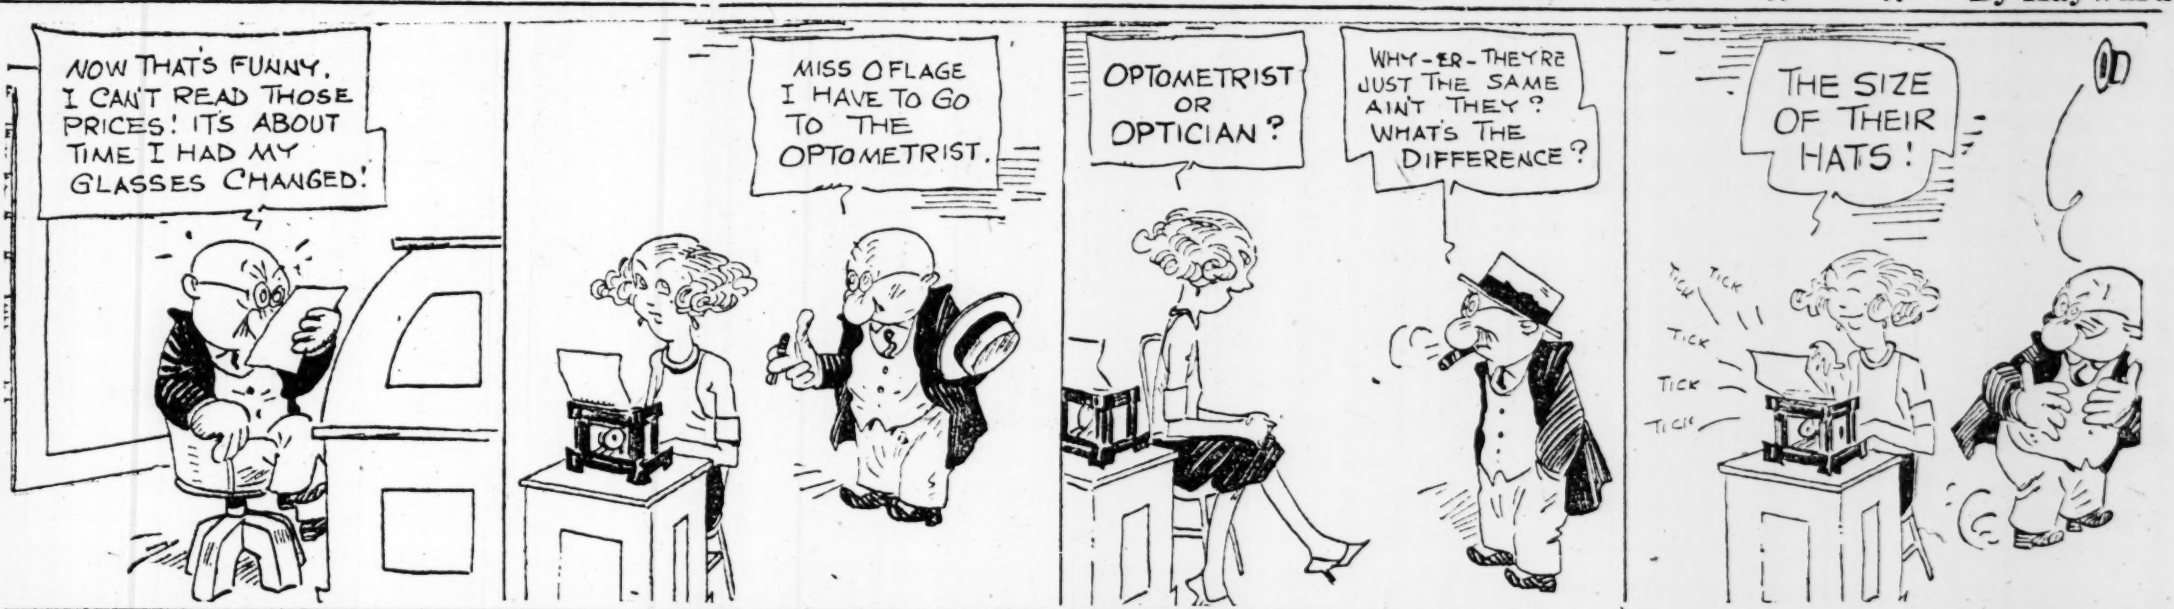

"Go!" repeated the girl, "and don't come back. The next time I shall not warn you." The command was accompanied by a sharp click as she threw a cartridge into the chamber of her rifle, and another swift glance into her eyes showed Brent that she was in deadly earnest. He returned the cap to his head and bowed. "Very well," he said gravely and departed.

Late that evening Brent and Joe Pete were surprised by a knock upon the door of their cabin. Brent answered the summons and three Indians filed solemnly into the room. Two of them stood blinking foolishly while the third drew from a light pack a fox skin which he offered for Brent's inspection. They asked for "hooch." After much patient pantomime, Brent finally succeeded in convincing them that there was no hooch to be had and with openly expressed disgust, the three took their departure.

A week later, Brent, while hunting, came upon seven caribou. Taking careful aim, he shot a bull. Three more shots in rapid succession accounted for a cow and a yearling and Brent watched the remaining four plunge off through the snow in the direction of the opposite side of the tundra which was a mile or more in width. When they had almost reached the scrub he started to see a flying bull suddenly near high and topple into the snow, the next instant one of the others dropped, and a moment later a third. Then to his ears came the sound of four shots fired in rapid succession. As is the wind!" cried the girl. "Quick, we must find shelter and camp," she led the way toward a dark blotch that showed in the scragging timber a few hundred yards away. They gained the thicket a few moments before the storm struck. The girl paused before a thick spruce that had

Brent stepped out onto the tundra and, sheath knife in hand, walked to his fallen caribou, he saw a figure emerge from the opposite scrub. An exclamation of surprise escaped him. It was the girl of the Indian village. "Wonder if she needs any help?" he muttered. "Guess I'll take a chance," he grinned. When he was half way across the open he saw the girl rise. She turned and, knife in hand, waited for him. Jerking at the strings of his cap, he removed it from his head: "That was mighty good shooting," he smiled. "But, they were very close. I couldn't have missed. Why you take your cap off?" she asked, and almost instantly she smiled. "Oh, yes, I know—I have read of it—but they don't do it here. Put it on please: It is cold."

Brent returned the cap to his head. "I'm glad I didn't know the other day, how expert you are with your rifle," he laughed. "Or I wouldn't have stayed as long as I did. The girl regarded him gravely: "You are not angry with me?" she asked.

"Why, no, of course not!" "I thought you were a hooch-runner," continued the girl. "But three of our band went to your cabin that very night to buy hooch, and they did not get it."

Brent was about to reply when both stared into the north. From out of the darkness came a sullen roar. "It been broken off. Jerking her ax from its sheath she set to work lopping branches from the dead tree. "Break some live branches for the roof of our shelter," she commanded. "I will build a wigwag." The words were snatched from her lips by the roar of the storm. Brent gasped for breath in the first rush of it and the next moment he was coughing the flinty dry snow-powder from his lungs. At the end of a half-hour the girl shouted in his ear that there were enough branches. Stopping, she motioned him to follow as she crawled through a low opening in what appeared to be a mountain of spruce boughs. To his surprise, Brent found that inside the wigwag he could breathe freely. At the opening upon the ground the girl proceeded to build a tiny fire. She opened a light pack-sack and produced a small stew pan and a little package of tea. She filled the pan with snow, and smiled up into Brent's face: "And now, at last, we are snug and comfortable for the night. We can live here for days if necessary. The caribou are not far away, and we have plenty of tea."

"You are a wonder," breathed Brent, meeting squarely the laughing gaze of the dark eyes. "Do you know that it had not been for you, I would have been—would never have weathered this storm."

"You were not born in the bush as I was," she replied. "I do not even know your name," she said gravely. "And yet I feel—"

"Snowdrift."

"That's a beautiful name!" cried with an effort he kept the emotion from his voice. "We have known each other always, and I am your friend. My name is Carter Brent. And now tell me something about yourself. Who are you? And why did you tell me you were an Indian?"

"I am an Indian," she replied, quickly. "That is, I am a half-breed. My father was a white man."

"And what is your name?"

"Snowdrift."

CORK CITY SUFFERS UNDER REBEL FIST

Belfast, July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Reports reaching here today represent the city of Cork as suffering grievously at the hands of the republican insurgent forces, who are said to be in absolute control.

The houses and property of Protestants are out of work. The port of Cork has been closed, it is said, ships not being allowed to enter or leave, business premises have been seized and their contents appropriated for the republican troops, many of whom are billeted with civilian inhabitants and several thousand people are out of work.

Moreover there has been an outbreak of robbery and destruction, according to reports arriving here, who have been interviewed by reporters for the Belfast Telegraph. These reports are quoted as saying the trouble in Cork began about the time of the attack on the Four Courts in Dublin and was initiated by a crowd of young men from the country districts who entered the city and started an orgy of looting and wanton destruction, devoting particular attention to the houses and property of Protestants.

They were soon joined by many young citizens and the state of the Protestant inhabitants became deplorable. Nobody dared to interfere in their behalf and it is said by the refugees that they lived in a state of constant terror.

After the fall of the Four Courts, the irregulars became more aggressive and petrolled the streets of Cork in armored cars, suppressing all public expressions of opinion in favor of the Free State. The Free State forces in the city, being overwhelmingly outnumbered, did not oppose them and consequently there was no fighting; but otherwise, say the refugees, almost every evil consequence of military domination was experienced.

A. F. of L. Issues "Proclamation" On Rail Strike

Washington, July 17.—The American Federation of Labor made public tonight a "proclamation" in the form of a resolution adopted by its executive council, purporting to set forth "important truths in connection with the strike of the railroad shop train workers."

Copies were sent to all national and international unions, all coal and labor bodies, throughout the United States. The proclamation denied that the workers were "engaged in conflict against the government" and asserted that they had "ceased work because the railroad board has made an award in response to a plea by the railroads, putting into effect terms and conditions of employment which the workers are unable to accept."

"The stoppage of work can be ended at any moment through joint negotiations," the resolution continued, "and there is nothing to prevent the railroads from adopting this course at any moment."

Alleging that the railroad control is vested in a "comparatively small group of the New York banks," the resolution ascribed the recent cuts in wages of railroad workers to a desire on the part of railroad executives to "curb the extravagance, extravagance and high financing."

BRITISH TO SEND "PROCLAMATION" ON RAIL STRIKE

London, July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—A special British declaration will arrive in the United States early in September in connection with negotiations for funding the British debt to America, it was announced by Prime Minister Lloyd George in the house of commons this afternoon.

Treasury Pleaded.

Washington, July 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Reports that the British intention of sending a financial mission to the United States in September to negotiate the funding of England's $5,000,000,000 war debt, were received today with apparent gratification by treasury officials.

Official advices concerning the sending of the British mission were as yet lacking at the treasury, but officials declared the United States would be ready to negotiate whenever the British representatives arrived.

Treasury officials for some time have awaited word as to when Great Britain would take steps towards funding negotiations, particularly in view of the fact that the $100,000,000 expected from Great Britain in September as semi-annual installment of interest on her debt has been included in treasury estimates. Moreover, the treasury has given the impression of a desire to negotiate funding negotiations with Great Britain because of the general belief that the only payments of any size of the country's foreign debt to be expected for some time would be those made by England.

Birmingham, Ala., July 17.—John B. North Carolina Guard Mobilized For Strike Duty

Raleigh, N. C., July 17.—Governor Morrison, today instructed Adjutant-General Metts to order a company of soldiers to Rockingham, one company to Wilson, one company to Raleigh and the Durham machine gun company to report at Durham, the soldiers to be held in readiness at these points for possible duty in connection with strike of railway shopmen at points in this state.

"If order is not restored in a very short time, I shall order General Metts to put sufficient military forces in the towns of Rocky Mount to restore order, uphold the law, and protect life and property," declared Governor Morrison in a statement this afternoon. The governor said he would order the troops out now, but for the fact that an injunction had been issued restraining strikers from interfering with the operation of trains on the Atlantic Coast Line railway and that he felt marshals and other United States police forces could handle the situation.

"There are disorders elsewhere in the state incident to this strike," said the governor. "They must cease, regardless of the reason offered for such lawless conditions. I shall use every power the state possesses to restore order and to keep the peace everywhere. I will not permit lawlessness to be engaged in this lawlessness and threats of lawlessness that they can not prevail against organized society, and that if they do not at once come to order and conduct their cause with argument rather than with menace and violence, I shall throw all the military power of this state against them without further delay."

The troops are now in annual encampment at Morehead City and will entrain for the cities designated immediately, General Metts said.

The troops to be sent to Rockingham would probably be used at Hatteras, a few miles away; those at Wilson, at Rocky Mount and the soldiers at Raleigh and Durham would be used wherever they were needed, it was stated at the governor's office.

Says Republicans Interfere With Democrat Primary

Washington, July 17.—Interference of republican senators, headed by Senator Spencer, of Missouri, in the democratic primary in that state, was charged in the senate today by Senator Stanley, democrat, Kentucky, who accused the republicans of seeking to aid in the defeat of Senator Reed.

Senator Stanley spoke only briefly but drew from Senator Spencer a statement that he, pursuing, he said, "a natural and real curiosity" had sent inquiries into every county in Missouri for the information as to whether in the state, if a man whose name Senator Reed had or the chances of his defeat of the democratic nomination by Breckinridge Long.
